CONTENTS

Cover Design by Julianne Kloc

Foreword and Dedication

With deepest respect, we, the graduating Class of 1964, solemnly appropriate the MADonnaRY to the memory of our late beloved President of these United States, John Fitzgerald Kennedy. He was a true epitome and advocate of education, and we find it fitting and proper to dedicate our yearbook in his honor.

Civic duties were always important issues in the late President's busy routine. These obligations, woven with those of school and church, are of lasting value to better ourselves, our neighbors and community.

The recollection of President Kennedy brings to most of us one particular attitude—the remarkable ability he possessed to look ahead. He personified youth, vigor and, above all, exuberant courage. To him culture was as important as governmental affairs. In all his undertakings he was a perfect exemplar in the portrayal of the qualities of the National Honor Society: character, scholarship, leadership and service.

"Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."
Inaugural Address

Dear Sharon,
Good luck in the future
Be a good and strong sweet as you

Our Theme

As the keystone is placed by the builder to hold the perfect arch in perpetual stability, so the structure of our education at Madonna

High School must be held firm and true to the purposes of life by the virtues represented in the symbol of the National Honor Society.

Consequently, the theme of the 1964 MAdonnaRY shall be to create an enthusiasm for scholarship; to stimulate a desire to render service; to promote worthy leadership; and to encourage the development of character in the students of Madonna High School.

*Dear Shator,
You're a great kid!
Stay as sweet as you are now!
Have fun during the summer —
hope to see you then!
Love,
Joan*

Our beloved late President John Fitzgerald Kennedy realized the importance of the National Honor Society qualities for all American citizens. His thoughts on these characteristics, which he made prominent in many of his speeches, will remain as a cherished legacy among the people whom he served.

CHARACTER . . . "For I am convinced that we in this country and in the free world possess the necessary resources and the skill and added strength of character that comes from a belief in the freedom of man." SCHOLARSHIP . . . "Equally important to our strength is the quality of our education. For of those to whom is given, much is required."

LEADERSHIP . . . "I would stress one measure in particular today—a measure of special importance in meeting the occupational demands of new American leadership in space, aid, trade, and defense." SERVICE . . . "The fact of the matter is that the period just ahead in the next decade will offer more opportunities for service to graduates than ever before in the history of the United States." CO-OPERATION . . . "Co-operation in the pursuit of knowledge can hopefully lead to co-operation in the pursuit of peace."

A prime requisite for today's world is CHARACTER, an asset by which we are strongly judged. This quality which sustains or dissipates our lives is not innate, but it must be acquired and cultivated daily through our lives. However, one cannot do this alone since he must model after and be counseled by one who is more experienced and mature. To do this most effectively, one must have these models and carefully scrutinize them for distinction. He can then begin to glean attributes and mold them into a personalized individuality.

The faculty members of Madonna High School possess this high standard of character. Besides being scholastically prepared for teaching, they are willing and more than eager to help channel the girls' characters and mold them into mature women who will succeed in the highly competitive society.

HIS HOLINESS POPE PAUL VI

HIS EMINENCE ALBERT GREGORY CARDINAL MEYER

RT. REVEREND MONSIGNOR WILLIAM E. McMANUS

His Holiness Pope Paul VI makes special efforts in guiding especially the youth of the Church. For who is it but they, who are the leaders of tomorrow's world? The Christian education of these future leaders is of utmost importance to him.

His Eminence Albert Cardinal Meyer has a more specific effect on us since he is our Cardinal. It is his cumbersome duty to guide the souls of his archdiocese, seeing to it that each one receives spiritual as well as material necessities.

The efforts of Msgr. William McManus are most indispensable to our great metropolis. As superintendent of Chicagoland Catholic schools, he is entrusted particularly with matters concerning the proper education of youth.

Our Principal

SISTER MARY HUGOLINE

Every establishment and organization has at its head someone in whom the general welfare can be entrusted. At Madonna High School, the authoritative power is vested in Sister Mary Hugoline, the principal, by whom that Madonnians are guided, counseled, and brought to the realization that a secondary-school education should be respected wholeheartedly.

Taking into consideration that the students are "building for life and eternity," Sister Mary Hugoline provides a varied program to meet individual differences among the student body. She has an insight that permeates every Madonnian with an understanding that progress must be the challenge of each one under her care. Her administrative powers reveal her ability and evaluation as a staunch educator.

Sister Mary Hugoline's warmth, courage, and the confidence she places in the students are deserving of the friendship, loyalty, trust, and prayers of the entire student body.

SCHOLARSHIP

Since the purpose of a high school education is to gain knowledge, scholastic rating plays an important role in selecting members for the National Honor Society. These students must put forth their best in their daily scholastic efforts. It is not only important to be intelligent; but more so, one must make proper use of that God-given intellect.

Mathematics, languages, social studies, sciences, and business courses provide the students with a chance to develop their minds and to grasp this new-found knowledge. Given proper attention, these subjects supply the learner with a properly balanced education so necessary in this demanding world today.

DEPARTMENTS

National Honor Society

The seniors are assured of membership in the N.H.S. after their induction.
Row 1: Saveria Lombardi, Joyce Glozeris, Christine Chowanski, Sandra Miczek, Valerie Zmuda, Theresa Dzien, Jolanta Skory, Theresa Cichon, and Elizabeth Williams.
Row 2: Shirley Jezierny, Mary Cordek, Elaine Merczak, Alice Barski, Donna Golon, Nance Kaweck, Judy Buscemi, Sharon Carrier, Christine Zachacki, Judith Mazur, Georgia Lejman, Judith Canino, Christine Wasilewski, and Barbara Gaborek.
Row 3: Bernadine Maczka, Christine Chudik, Diane Zych, Marilyn Marella, Arlois Vinson, Angela Piva, Patricia Brennan, Irene Mordarski, Linda Bober, Barbara Czajkowski, Geraldine Hodzima, Judith Mitchell, Cynthia Kolassa, Cecile Dooley, Theresa Janiga, Janice Wodnicki, and Marilyn Grodecki.

Fountainhead of Youthful, Mature and Scholarly Leaders.

Character, leadership, scholarship, service, and co-operation are the traits which are encouraged to be cultivated from the inception of the freshman year. To the girls who are successful in mastering and fostering these qualities is awarded the recognition of becoming members of the National Honor Society.

This Society seeks to form excellent future citizens and scholars through the promotion of various programs on the scholastic and extra-curricular level. They afford a superb outlet for the personal advancement of the individuals to give more of themselves in the service of others.

Theresa Dzien, vice president of the National Honor Society, receives her pin from Sister Mary Hugoline.

Mary Fronczak, former vice president of the National Honor Society, addresses the assembly on the importance of developing the qualities necessary for becoming a member..

Valerie Zmuda, president of the National Honor Society, lights the candle signifying strength of character.

Christine Wasilewski's expression signifies joy as she receives her pin from Sister Mary Hugoline.

Diane Dus and Christine Wesse assist in designing a bulletin board, which will emphasize the importance of teaching all nations about God.

Religion

The study of the beauty of the Catholic religion forms the indispensable foundation of a perfect school program. It is not an isolated subject, but one which permeates every course in the curriculum. The correlation can be made with the logical background in mathematics, the complexities of the world of science, the overwhelming findings in social studies, and in the integration of virtues with business ethics.

The Madonnian is introduced to the Creative Love of God, the Redeeming Love of Christ, the Sanctifying Love of the Holy Spirit, and the Beautifying Love of the Triune God. Specific instructions in the senior year also include the study of Mariology, the sacrament of marriage, and the selection of the proper vocation by which God can be glorified and the soul can attain its eternal salvation.

The Core of Living,

Loving, and Knowing God Prompted by Faith

Ann Marie Parisi, Nora Nataneck, Lorna Malecki, and Florence Liberatore study the symbols of the Blessed Trinity in their comprehensive religion I course.

The religion supplements are enjoyed by Cynthia Kosmatka, Lynn Marr, and Jane Macialek.

Religion IV students view pictures of the Madonna in correlation with the study of Mariology. They are Lee Kaainoni, Carol Hrynkow, Judith Badzioch, Gerri Balcer, Barbara Ptaszkowski, Janice Slovick, and Patricia Tadel.

Janice Kopec, Barbara Martenkus, Christine Bobeck, and Evelyn Boronczyk learn the importance of an effective delivery in speaking from Helga Harjung in English I.

Sister Mary Christine finds willing assistance from Christine Ners, Rose Romano, and Linda Zak in the selection and distribution of poetry books.

English

As an obligatory course in high school, English plays an imperative role in the formation of a well-rounded person. It is the foundation on which all other subjects are built. Without the correct use of grammar and an intelligent adult vocabulary, one cannot expect to progress in other fields. Besides instructions in grammar and vocabulary, the study of literature also plays a prominent part in a four-year English course. The student becomes familiar with the numerous poets, authors, and critics who contributed so much to the field of American literature.

English trains the girls in the creation of poetry and essays as well as the writing of book reviews and term papers. It is the key which brings into view the hidden qualities a girl might possess in the field of journalism; it is the guide to expressing one's innermost feelings through the magic of words.

Chaucer's Canterbury Tales in English IV are portrayed by Joyce Fritz, Christine Wasilewski, Patricia Brennan, Julianne Kloc, Dolores Pesce, Bernadine Maczka, Arlois Vinson, Judith Canino, Nance Kaweck, and Elizabeth Williams.

The Living Voice of Men Put Forth Through Their Expressions

As Donna Pampanella prepares another selection for interpretation, Helen Konopka enjoys reciting poetry to records for intense listeners, Helen Dorosz and Frances Czachor.

Dressed in the native costume of Poland, Barbara Wasilewski, Harriet Musial, and Jeanette Burkat admire the intricate paper cut work as part of their study of Polish culture.

Polish III students, Irene Marczak, Christine Mielnik, and Theodora Wyczasany pose in original attire of Warsaw.

Languages

Investigating Diverse Cultures and Means of Speaking

The study of different groups of people and their language and customs is included in the Language Department at Madonna. The scholastic pursuit in the detailed study of Latin, French, Spanish, and Polish offers the students an insight into a culture that is unlike their own. The curriculum is not only replete with the stress on the importance of grammar and vocabulary mastery, but it also provides a solid general background of knowledge in the first years of study. Since a vital program of learning must transcend this phase, the courses include the study of the social and cultural aspects of the people and the correlation of this information to the language itself.

"Friends, Romans, countrymen," declares Barbara Kasprzycki as fellow Latin IV students lend their ears. The eager listeners are Bernadette Sigl, Cecile Dooley, Christine Ference, and Judith Canino.

The Spanish projects are displayed by Yvonne Dutze, Sharon Carbonara, Judy Maczulewski, Linda Wolczyk, Linda Riley, Marilyn Jakubowski, Julie Storck, and Joyce Leppak.

Christine Ranello, Kathleen Kroll, Carol Dudek, Pamela Suba, and Judith Weiss prepare for a tape recorded dialogue in their French II course.

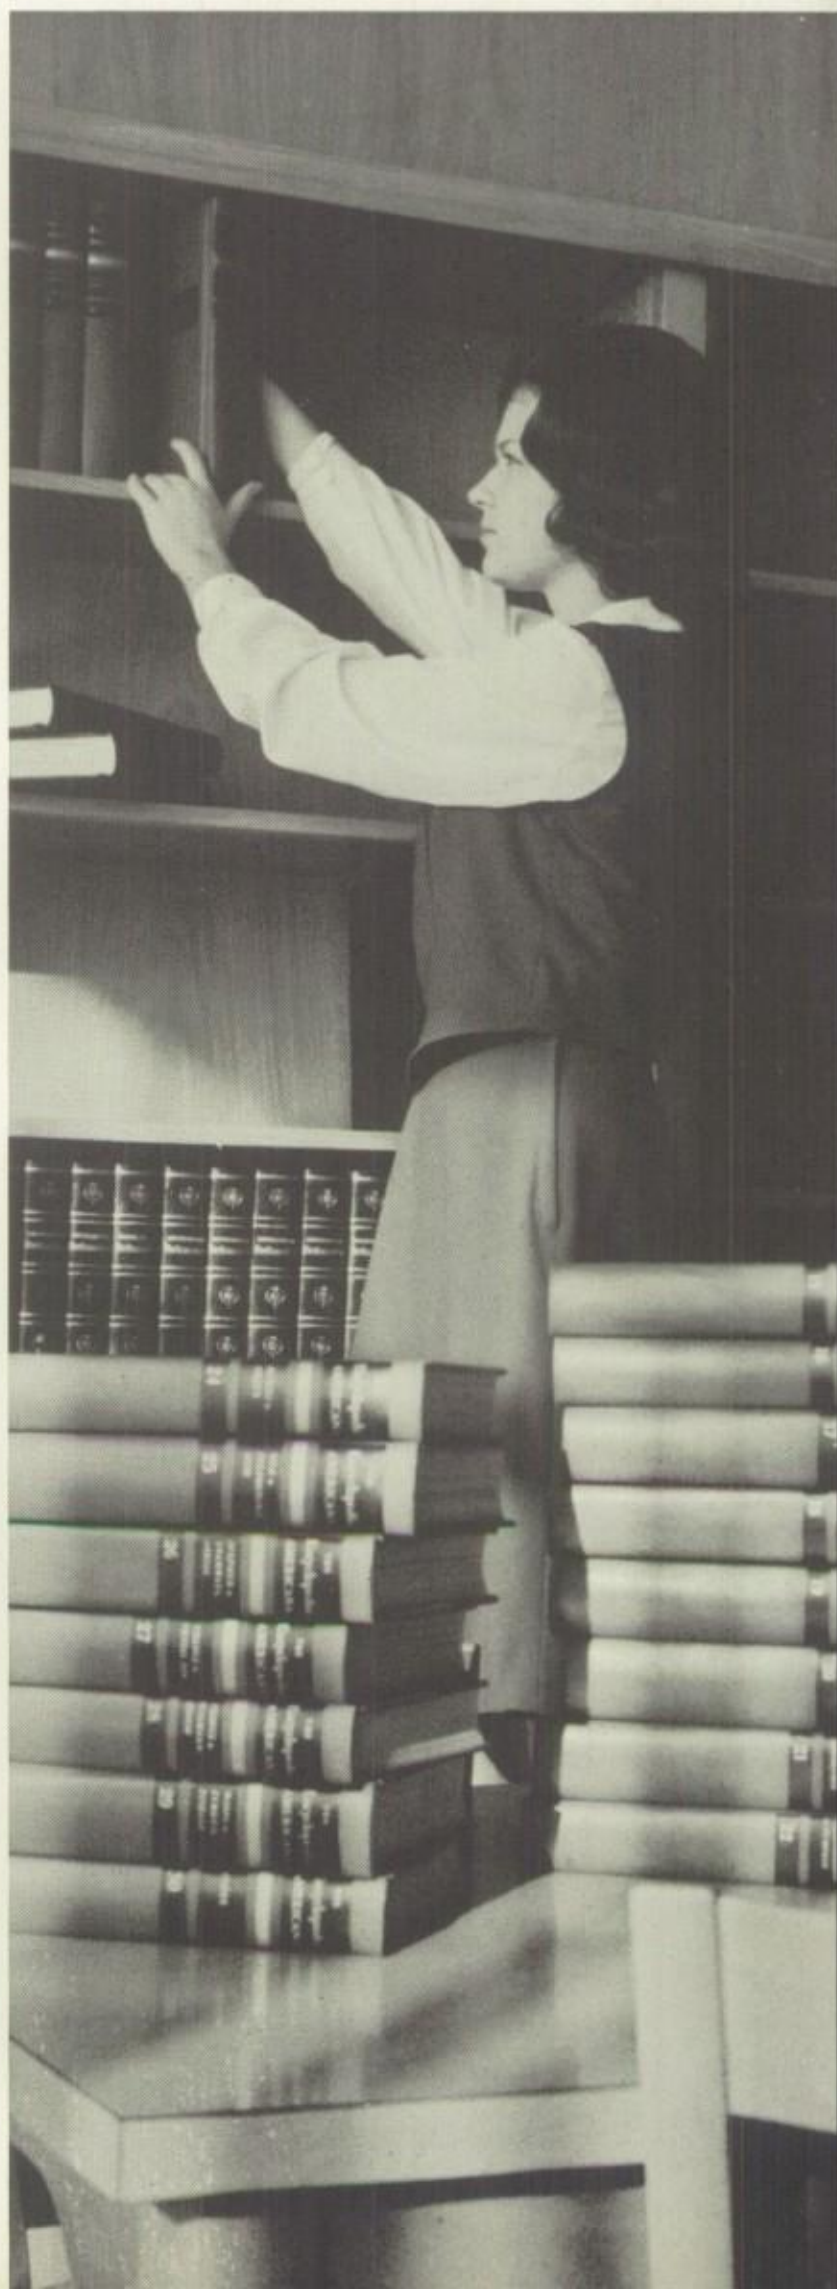

Library

The Storehouse of Riches Which Increase by Being Consumed

The library can rightfully be called as a storehouse which complements the educative values of every department at Madonna High School. Its numerous books, encyclopediae, periodicals, pamphlets, almanacs, and selective audio-visual materials offer unlimited references for further advancement in research work. The depth of information with regard to religion, sciences, mathematics, music, and business is a challenge for those students who seek to delve further to better their knowledge.

Karen Sims expertly performs one of the many detailed duties of a student librarian.

A familiar sight in the library is to see the student librarians efficiently handle the large group at the check-out desk.

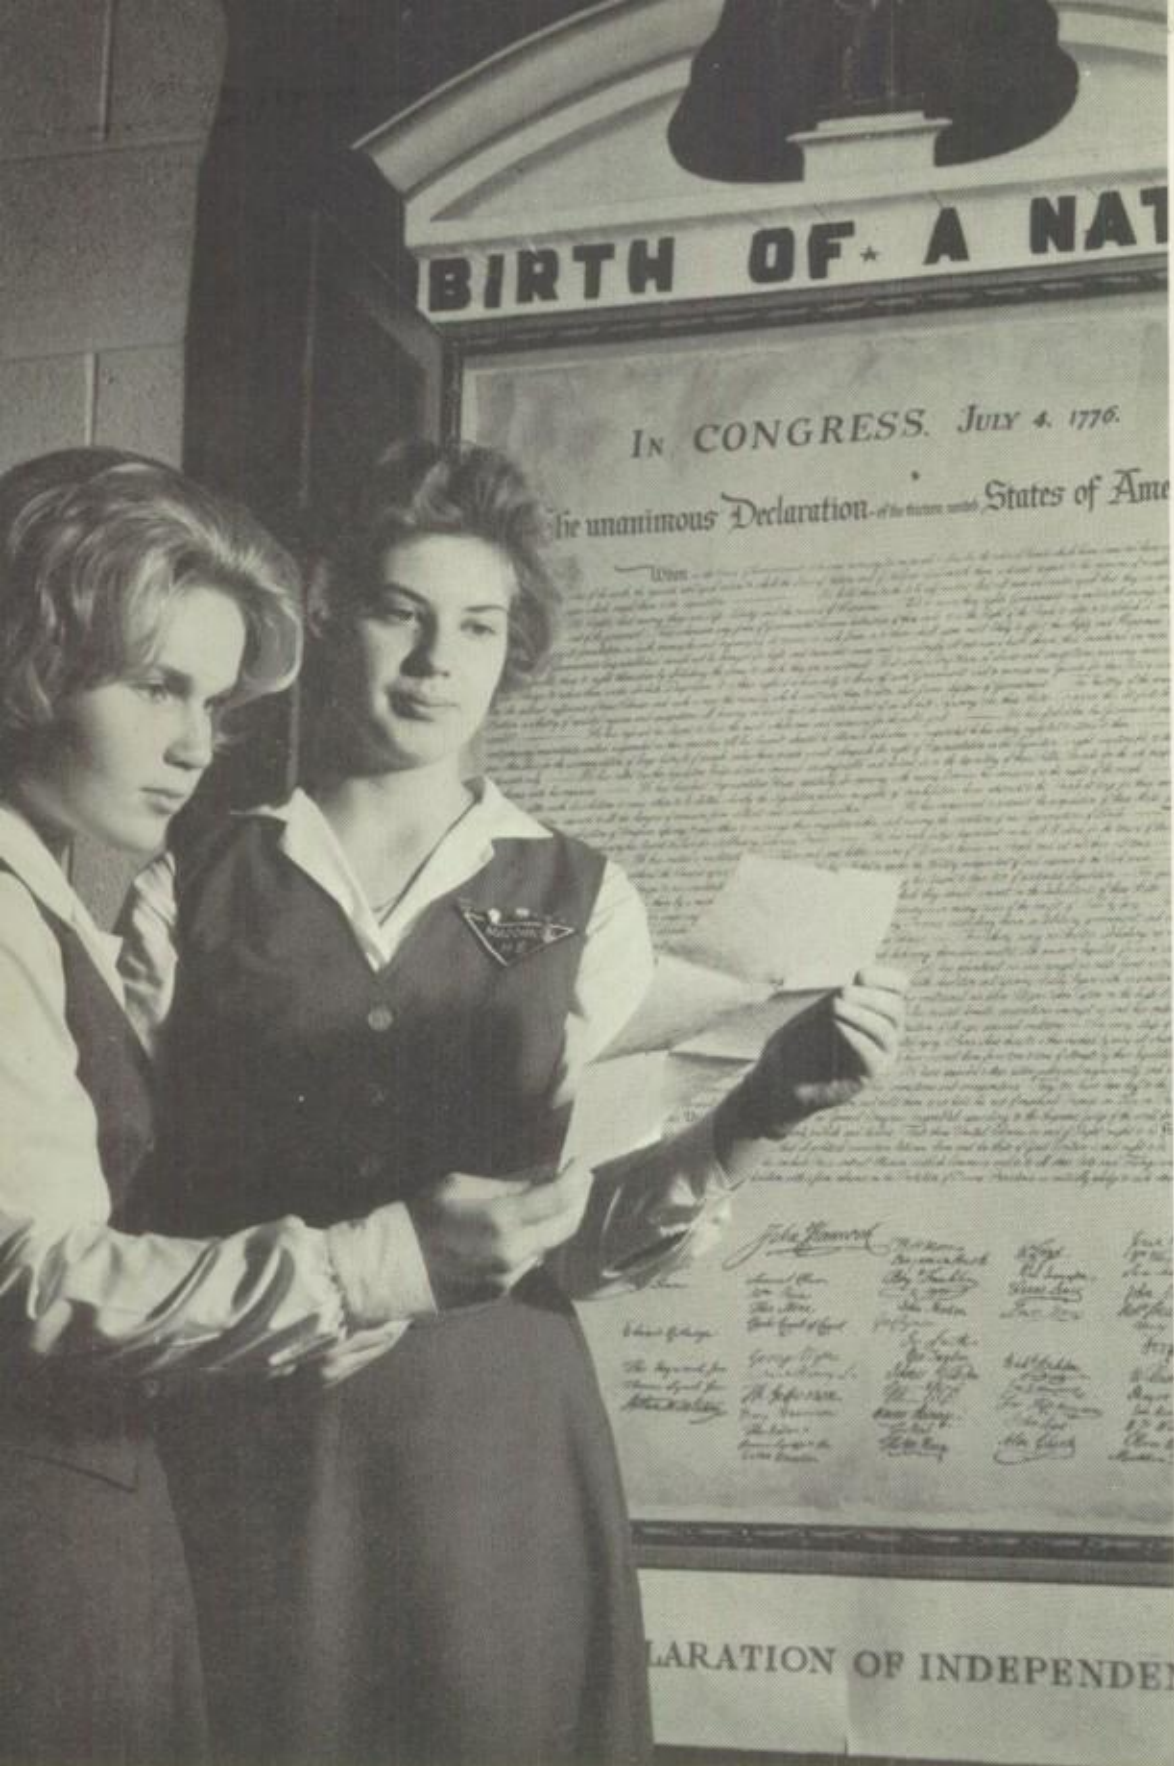

Records and filmstrips, which will be distributed to subject classes, are prepared in the audio-visual room by Joanne Leszkiewicz, Estelle Siers, and Sandra Winter.

Joanne Sabbia and Julie Storck peruse through the periodical indexes to become acquainted with the valuable references available in the library.

Margaret Retzke and Sharon Rezmer study a copy of the Declaration of Independence as a part of their history assignment.

The sequence of courses in history, geography, and sociology leads the students to understand the works of man and his contribution to the growth of civilization.

Through sociology the student is made aware of the presence of man's social relationships and his adaptability in solving problematic situations. World History and United States History present the past in a series of events, displaying the failure along with the progress in every era. Geography, on the other hand, enables the student to evaluate the actions of man from an environmental point of view which has a bearing on the general pattern of customs in every country.

The knowledge obtained from social studies is supplemented by speakers who are associated with social work and up-to-date current problems. Scheduled trips to various social agencies and the vicarious experiences derived from filmstrips and movies are invaluable media for the understanding of the progress of mankind.

Social Studies

Knowing the Past Yields a Sound Future

Locating a remote place in the wilds of Africa can be fascinating to geography students, Nancy Anselmo and Barbara Tukiendorf.

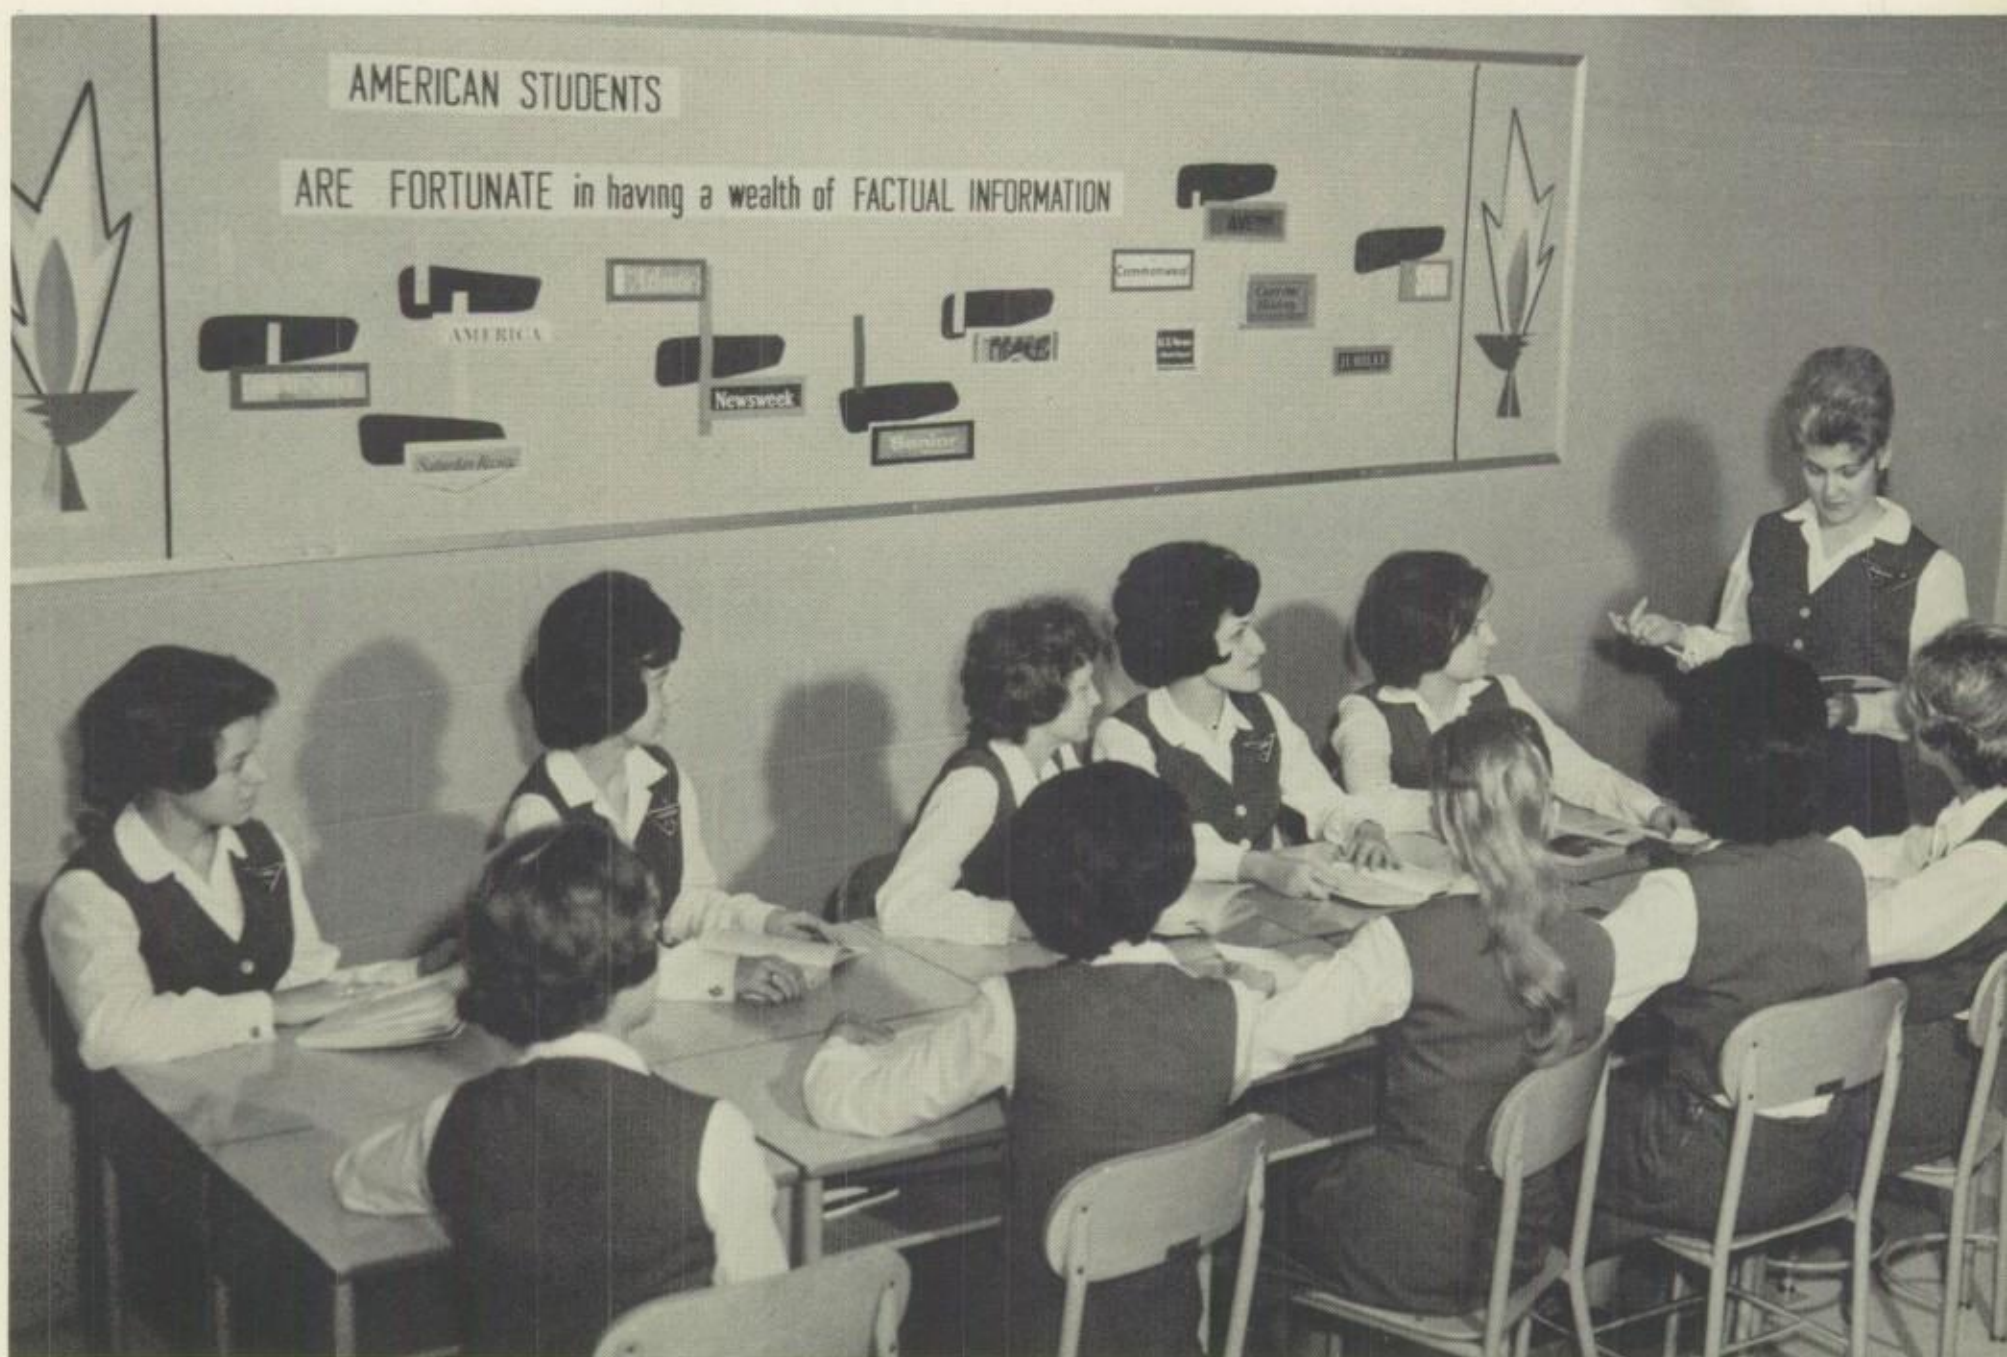

Senior sociology students, Mary Cordek, Marge Ole-nec, Halina Wasilkowski, Marilyn Grodecki, and Bernadine Maczka gather supplementary research material in current periodicals.

Sister Mary Therese makes excellent use of comprehensive reading as a teaching aid in the World History class.

Karen Conley, Jean Maciag, Nancy Bus, Anne Pollace, Halina Marlega, Celine Michaluk, Pamela Porada, Kathleen Kinzey, Karen Schulz, and Cheryl Pietrzak obtain first-hand information concerning the adaptation of many current problems to modern-day society from Marilyn Wojtasiewicz.

The important facts of embryology are studied by Melanie Kaminski, Diane Zachacki, Deborah Haynes, Barbara Rayski, Cheryl Puskarcik, aspirant, Joan Maczka, Cecilia Bieszczat, and Lynn Garstki.

Great interest in the study of shells is shown by Barbara Thomas, Mary Golon, Loretta Birtola, Carol Dudek, and Kathleen Kroll.

Science

The Ultimate Determinant of Man's Origin and Destiny

Exciting advancements in the scientific world have enkindled a new interest in science. Madonna's courses reflect this change since many enthusiastic students realize the importance of this study. Science is adventurous because the field is always progressing; and stimulating, since there is still much to be discovered and known. Yet before a student can go on to advanced work, she must master the fundamentals. The science classes, which are comprised of general science, biology, chemistry, and physics, contain the foundation of scientific learning. If this foundation is strong and broad, advanced study can be grasped and assimilated easily.

In service to one's country and fellow man, science offers limitless opportunities. Whether sending up rockets or finding the cure to a disease, scientists are now striving and will be endeavoring to satisfy more of the many needs in today's world.

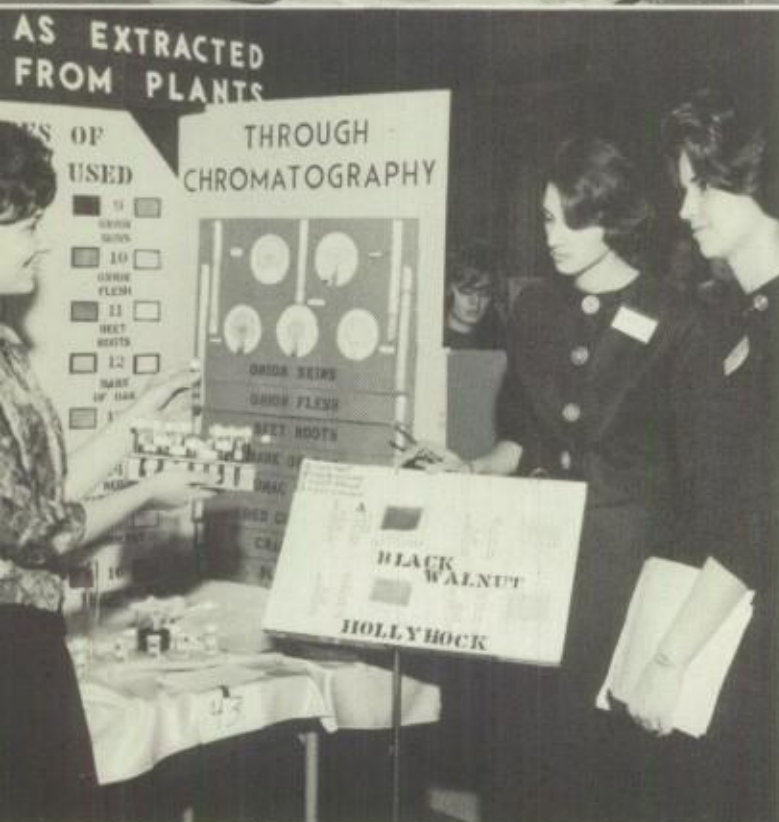

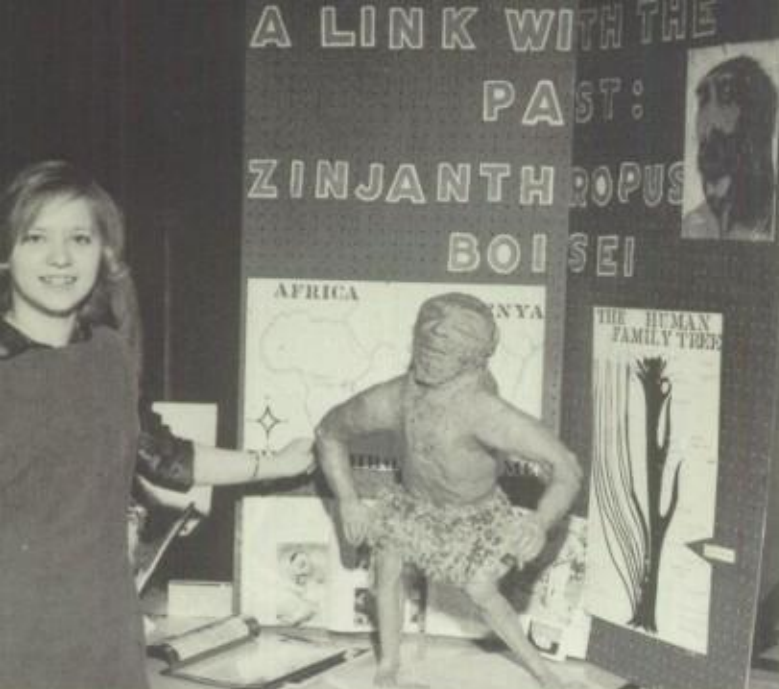

Exploring the Mysteries of Scientific Realities

Artificial respiration, an invaluable part in the study of the Civil Defense Program, is demonstrated by the following general science students: Karen Zegiel, Denuda Samulski, Judith Kobetz, Lana Tarasenko, Barbara Dobosiewicz, and Vicki Maciarz.

What makes me hear and see? These mysteries are explored by Marilyn Pistorio, Lucille Guarino, Mary McDonough, Marilyn Jakubowski, and Beatrice Manfredini in the biology class.

Christine Dudek and Barbara Cohn present the problem of smoking, a very timely subject under observation.

"How is the ancient cave man related to modern man?" That is what Marilyn Jakubowski explains in detail in her science project at the Science Fair.

Calmly and confidently, Judith Zelasko explains how dyes are extracted from plants to two of the judges, Misses Mary Kutza and Patricia Galuszka.

Diane Zachacki displays her knowledge with regard to the subject on tuberculosis.

A "bird's eyeview" of the 1964 Science Fair depicts the excitement and enthusiasm shared by all the participants.

Science

Just as the full significance of Christian unity can only be appreciated when all the Christian sects come to some mutual understanding, so, too, the true beauty, the philosophy of science can only be realized when all of its many assets converge into the natural law. Therein lies man's keys to the knowledge of the omniscient God, and in the knowledge of God lies man's highest happiness.

Using the timer kit to check short-time intervals in the physics class, Christine Zachacki observes the time count and pulls the tape as Alice Barski connects the battery.

Georgia Lejman and Nance Kaweck assemble molecules, while Judith Buscemi uses the periodic table to guide them.

Judith Cassidy is comparing the vertical notation of signed numbers with the horizontal line.

Mathematics

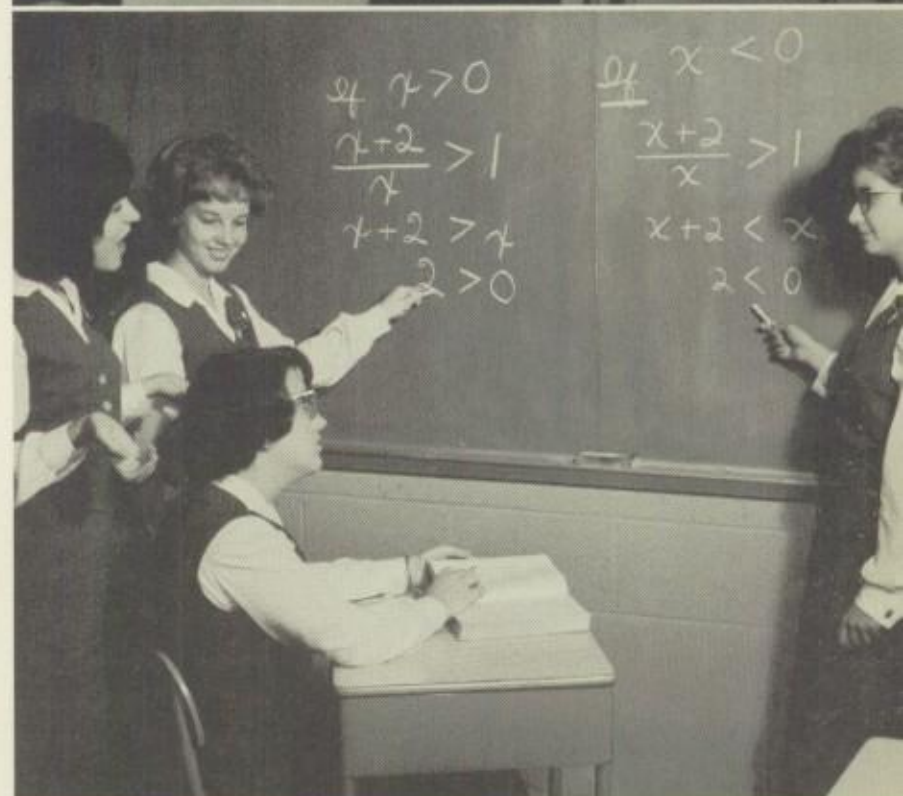

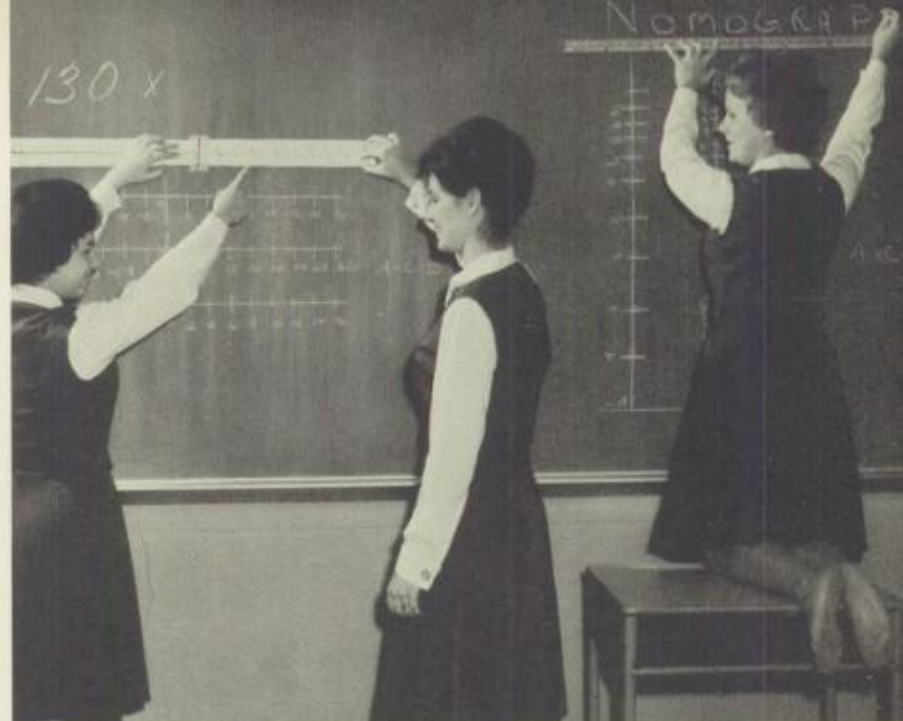

Ways and Means of Unlocking the Door to the Vast Unknown

Appealing to the orderly and logical part of a Madonnian's mind, mathematics courses offer both intellectual satisfaction and stimulation. The student witnesses the building up of new knowledge and its correlation with that already learned. Since mathematics is truly reasonable, the mind of the student can grasp the relationships among ideas and various concepts. The work is deep and meaningful, and the student pursues mathematics further because of the satisfaction derived from it.

Mathematics is the groundwork of many modern-day fields; so it must and does keep pace with the changing world. New and easier ways of doing things can be found on a mathematical basis, and they are evidenced by an improvement in the accuracy of the many calculating devices. Great and tremendous opportunities lie ahead for those who pursue mathematics after the secondary-school education.

Bernadine Sliwa uses a compass to construct geometric designs and curve stitching.

The use of the slide rule is given in detail by Sandra Miczek and Marilyn Grodecki, while Elizabeth Williams prepares to explain the nomograph.

With assistance from Lynn Hytry and Rita Galuszka, Fanny Montalbo relates the process of solving inequalities in advanced algebra to Linda Marksteiner.

Victoria Kowalewski gives directions on how to play "Mathematical Hot Rod," a number game mastered in business math class.

It is undeniable that Edith Ozolins had been caught at an awesome moment in her humorous passage.

Sandra Miczek, Edith Ozolins, and Joan Penning proudly display their trophies which were won at a forensic tournament.

A student from Gordon Technical High School presents his case in favor of the negative side.

Investigation of Arguments Based on Facts

Resolved: that under the leadership and guidance of Sister Mary Antonella and Sister Mary Bernardonia, Madonna's debate team has proved itself well-informed, well-prepared, and ready for action. It takes many months of research to find all the information necessary for a truly fact-filled argument. Besides the daily classes in school, the debaters contribute many of their leisure hours in competition with both Catholic and public high schools in various states. In addition to this, inter-scholastic and demonstration debates, speech workshops, forensic meets, and Student Congresses are held to assist the girls in public speaking and logical reasoning through argumentative discussions.

An enthusiastic debater, Elaine Drozd, presents her information to an intent audience.

Joan Penning, Sister Mary Antonella, moderator, Sandra Miczek, Mary Ann Iantorno, and Christine Wasilewski bid farewell to Sister Mary Hugoline, principal, before they depart for the debate tournament at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

Judith Mitchell exemplifies the poise and assurance that is needed for an effective and constructive delivery of a debate.

Sharon Carrier instructs Irene Mordarski while she uses the mimeoscope for the first time.

Business Education

A Road to Outstanding Efficiency in Secretarial Techniques

As the world of automation produces more and more machines to take the place of office workers, today's secretary and stenographer must be more educated and more efficient than ever before to compete with the modern electronic devices. Consequently, it is the aim of the business education teachers at Madonna to instruct their students on what to expect in the business field, whether they become bookkeepers, stenographers, typists, filing clerks, or private secretaries.

The faculty members patiently assist the girls in correct office machine techniques, split-second typing and shorthand, and keeping the employer's business transactions neatly and properly recorded. Besides the basic elements of each subject, the girls also perfect themselves in correct office procedures which include neatness, accuracy, and proper decorum. The emphasis is also stressed on Christian ethics which form the nucleus of advancement in the business world.

Getting the columns to balance correctly is a challenging problem in bookkeeping to Mary Lou Kowalski and Charmaine Del Re.

Susan Humenik, Christine Krystof, Jeanette Walloch, Madeleine Kowalewski, and Irene Woloszyn learn from Sister Mary Tyburcia that striking keys to the beat of a rhythmic tune increases the typing speed.

The students in the Business Department prepare for a future career in the office under the proficient and able instructor, Sister Mary Kingnetta.

"Ready, set, go!" says Tessie Klos as she times Diane Warren in a type-writing speed test.

Business Education

Preparing for Automation

Karen Conley, Irene Klysz, and Nancy Bus realize the value of record dictation for proficiency in speed building.

With guidance from Sister Mary Stanisla, Diane Lis explains the fundamentals of shorthand to her classmates: Diana Kolimas, Nancy Bucko, Harriet Minota, and Barbara Marczak.

Irene Styka patiently files over one hundred sample letters rapidly and accurately according to the alphabetic system of filing.

Olga Rusniak, Madeline Schultz, and Christine Chudzik scrutinize pamphlets on home nursing.

Adding the final touches to their freshly covered pillow, Madeline Schultz, Olga Rusniak, and Christine Chudzik check their Home Nursing manuals to see if they have correctly followed the step-by-step bed-making instructions.

Mrs. Marilyn Zimmerman, R.N. demonstrates the correct way of bathing an infant to Barbara Rylko, Mary Hager, Sandra Koziol, Marilyn Procenti, Linda Swift, Patricia Zambito, and Joan Cizewski.

Home Nursing

Vital Training for a Level Head in Emergencies

The home nursing course has for its aim the teaching of girls to be helpful in the home when illness or an emergency strikes—emergencies that aren't necessarily treated by a doctor. The course is offered to the seniors on a one-period-a-week basis, and the students become well versed in first aid and nutritional values. The importance of being able to administer first aid cannot be emphasized enough. Nutrition is another important step in preparation for the future as homemakers and mothers.

In addition to instruction received from Sister Mary Alacoque, a registered nurse teaches the girls in the Mother-Baby care phase of the course. A certificate is awarded to those girls who pass the required material.

Ellen Pouska, Cynthia Azzarello, and Judith Malek place the perfect finishing touches on their handwork.

Clothing

Style and Modesty Are Fashionable Reflections of Femininity

The ability to sew and create one's own wardrobe opens the door to economy with the aid of a little imagination and competent instruction in the basic techniques of sewing under the guidance of Sister Mary Alacoque.

The goals of the clothing program also offer instructions on how to select materials and how to budget one's expenses for modest apparel.

Lucille Carollo, Christine Ziel, and Joanne De Backer envision themselves as future expert seamstresses.

The clothing II students study patterns and examine fabrics in preparation for the making of a new fall ensemble.

Marilyn Dalke and Joanne De Backer assist Beverly Wood and Judith Solon at perfecting that all-important factor—the proper fitting.

Diane Bryk, Nancy Rzaca, Christine Bryl, and Ellen Simkowski gather the necessary materials for immediate use toward an enjoyable session in the clothing class.

Nutrition

Preparing Future Homemakers for a Better Tomorrow

With the goal in mind to prepare young women as future homemakers and to create better homes for the future, the courses in nutrition are offered. They include discussions of nutritional values, food selection, and meal preparation. The study of foods, under the direction of Sister Mary Ignatius, gives the student a broad working knowledge of the nature of foods, in relation to the various needs of the members of the family.

If the student chooses to make nutrition her life's work as a career, she can pursue this field as a dietitian, a nurse, or a food chemist.

Maxine Klinger receives detailed instruction on the nutrition wheel and its value from Suzanne Andrews.

Home economics experts, Misses Johnson and Hubert from the Gas Company, demonstrate some interesting techniques to Sister Mary Ignatius and her students.

"The centerpiece must be perfect," is what Carol Schramm seems to be saying as Carol Wysocke prepares to finish setting the plates.

Efficient homemaking and its great benefits for the future are studied by Theresa Rogus, Frances Krenz, Celine Michaluk, Kathleen Barker, and Anne Ryba.

Food for thought? Linda Glogowski dreams of future concoctions.

Continuing the never-ending search for beauty in line, movement, color, and texture, students from art I and II seem intent in converting their own ideas into works of originality and personal expression.

Art

Creating Artists in the Various Modes of Expression

Janet Wendel appears to be quite content with her sculptured foam-glass piece.

Art is perhaps one of the greatest releases for the creative talent and skillful imagination which God has placed in each individual.

Through art individuals can use their talents to greaten the honor and glory of their Master and acquire a sense of personal self-satisfaction at the thought of producing their private masterpiece. The doors are many which lead Madonnians to the beauties of art—ceramics, pottery, oil painting, watercoloring, wood carving, mosaics and an endless number of media and fields which are available to the curious mind.

Senior art students are making rough sketches for one of their compositions.

Art

Working with pottery can be extremely enjoyable as Linda Glogowski, Pamela Wilson, Colette Tyc, and Susan Cangiolosi, display their artistic talents.

Nancy Anselmo, Rosemary Posdal, and Sabina Mielicki are absorbed in their paintings depicting various phases of surrealism in art.

Janis Kummer poses for Senior art students as they attempt to capture realism in their portraits of her.

Music The Exaltation of Each Joy and Pacification of Each Grief

The four-year members of the band are Nancy Sobek, Rosalie Vincent, Barbara Tessner, Margaret O'Rourke, Christine Zachacki, Arlois Vinson, Gloria Szczypta, Bette Lois Kuzniar, Julianne Kloc, and Mary Ellen Berek.

A glimpse into the world of music at Madonna High School will automatically give a clue to the cultural development.

Private piano lessons are offered by Sister Mary Euphemia to ambitious girls who wish to cultivate the art of playing. Intensive hours of practice produce stimulating results and a hardy round of applause from the audience.

Young voices singing until the room vibrates is a key to the splendid success of the Glee Club. It adds its touch of magic to many activities and performances under the direction of Sister Mary Lucretia. The beautiful choral selections begin with Madonna Day in October and culminate with the solemn moments of graduation.

Knowledge and understanding is also achieved through the Music Appreciation course, which is an exciting introduction to the theory and basic principles of music.

A pleasant and an appreciative addition materialized four years ago with the introduction of the Symphonic Band. Its melodious refrains are heard during the annual concerts, school activities, and various programs. Under the leadership and tutorship of Sister Mary Euphemia and Mr. Robert L. Sturm, the Band is making great progress since its inception in the school program.

It's all drums! The percussion section of the band includes Julianne Kloc, Miriam Rodriguez, Mary Ellen Berek, and Anna Janisch.

With competent and thorough instructions from Sister Mary Euphemia, Karen Sims improves her techniques on the piano; Joanne Dobranski follows the directives in the completion of the musical patterns.

Charmaine Del Re is privileged to receive her organ lessons in the Madonna Chapel.

Music notation and theory is introduced by Sister Mary Lucretia in the Music Appreciation class to Theresa Ziomek, Anna Fiorentino, and Margaret Pouska. She is assisted by Linda Zemrowski.

Christine Zachacki, Nancy Sobek, and Barbara Tessner seem to be in agreement with Marge O'Rourke and Julianne Kloc on the plans for a future concert.

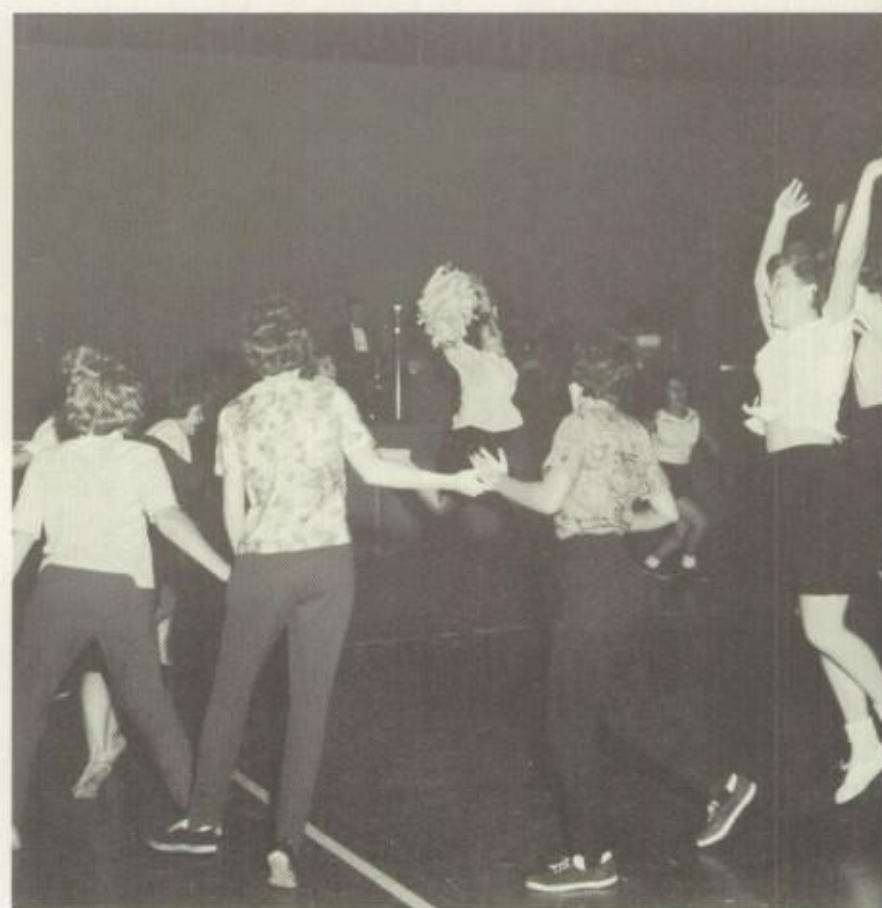

Pre-gym class activity absorbs Jo Ann Willmes, Carol Janick, Wanda Waismann, and Pia Di Paulo as they get ready for a period of vigorous exercises.

Excitement, action, and exuberance for victory clearly describe the atmosphere that surrounds the Madonnian's four youthful years in their physical education classes.

The girls participate in calisthenics, simple exercises, and various indoor and outdoor games. Basketball, volleyball, and baseball form the nucleus for competitive spirit. These activities develop physical abilities and establish a sense of true leadership and co-operation.

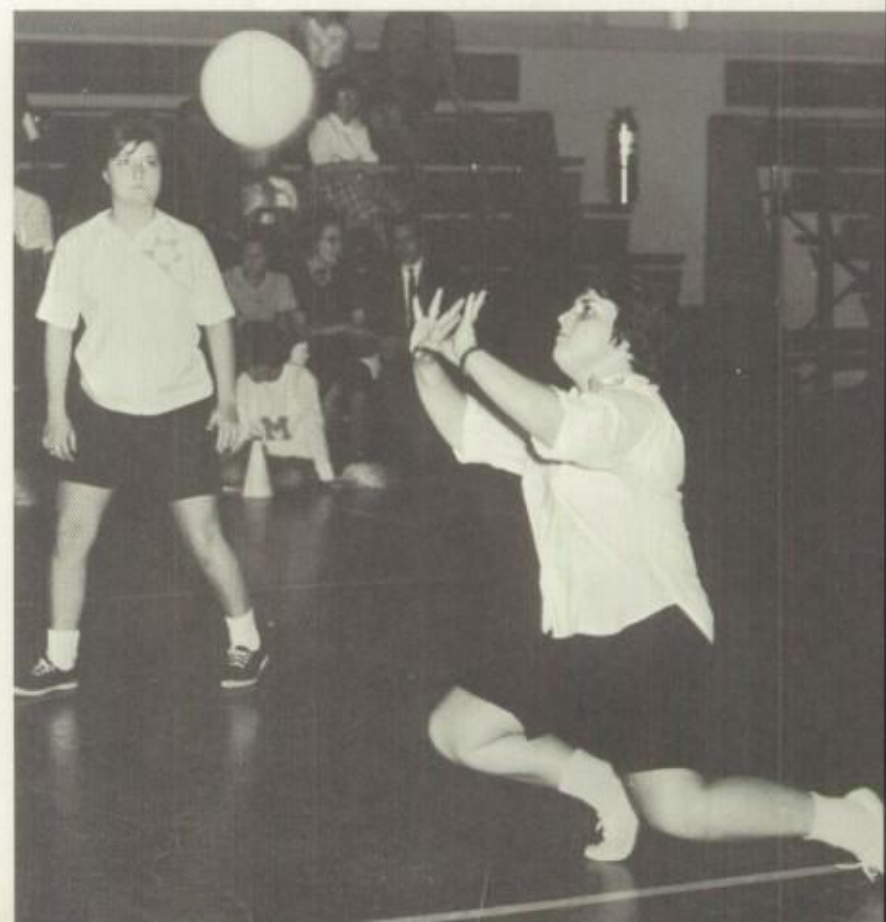

Just as the minds of the Madonnians are developed through education, the bodies are trained to cultivate skill and vitality. All of these qualities express what the weekly gym classes exemplify.

Physical Education
Run! Dribble!
Shoot! Hurrah!
Score 18-14

"Hurrah! We won!" For the first time in Madonna's history, the Alumnae Association beat the Varsity All-Star players with a score of 10-3 in an enjoyable volleyball game.

Determined to bring the Alumnae team to victory, Carol Adamski attempts to return the serve, while Sharon Szczepiek prepares a defense.

Keeping in step with our country's physical fitness program, a typical gym class reviews its exercises in order to maintain that heathful, slim, trim figure.

"One, two, three, GO!" As the countdown for the beginning of the soccer game ends, Judith Zelasko and Kathleen Sturgulewski attempt to kick the ball.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

S-T-R-E-T-C-H for that basket, Sharon Rezmer!

Members of the Varsity basketball team run to form a block against a shot toward a basket made by Marilyn Ratkowski.

Stagehands

Ginger Vestuto, Terry Gajda, Margaret Anselmo, Carol Sigman, Linda Ziemek, and Karen Peleschak realize that promptness is essential to keep the show moving smoothly.

The complicated controls for light and sound in any dramatic performance are ably manipulated by Susan Nielson, Linea Stopa, Mary Kusz, Barbara Szostecki, Mary Janis, and Cynthia Krajenta.

The Unseen Heroines Behind Every Production

Capable stagehands are an important group in any drama production.

One of the requirements in being a drama student is that of getting acquainted with the background for the play in the role of a stagehand. Lighting techniques, scene preparation, setting, and the art of make-up are only a part of the comprehensive program of excellent readiness for drama. The girls must be well acquainted with all the props, switches, microphones, and even remotely connected with backstage. The art of scene design, costume, and countless other details must be learned thoroughly, effectively, and correctly.

The members of the cast dance to the melodious strains of WALTZ ETERNAL.

SONG OF NORWAY

by

ROBERT WRIGHT AND GEORGE FORREST

The Artistic Projection of Personality at Its Peak

James Smith leads Paulette Arendt, the prima donna, to sing for the all-important opera.

Lights! Camera! Action!

As the curtain slowly rises, a hush falls over the audience as the spectators sit in a trance of expectation. Meanwhile, backstage, there is a flurry of excitement. Stagehands rush to put the finishing touches on props, adjust the lighting and sound, and recheck the cues. In the dressing rooms final touches are made in make-up, and the actors and actresses nervously rearrange their costumes and review their lines. A calm, reassuring word is given by the director to the actors before their entrance on the stage.

Whether behind the scenes or out in front of the footlights, a drama student experiences an uncomparable feeling of gratification and accomplishment as the curtain slowly falls once again.

Vito Lazauskas as FATHER GRIEG and Sandra Bialek, his wife, look admiringly upon their son Edvard, played by Terrence Zawacki for her accomplishments as a concert pianist in SONG OF NORWAY.

Michael Lassaco, David Lawrence and Barbara Zdon seem to be calling upon the home of Edvard Grieg, portrayed by Terrence Zawacki, as Theodora Bielski frowns upon their visit.

David Lawrence, Joanne Malkowski, and Terrence Zawacki are engrossed in a melody of song.

Gregg Molda has finally been crowned king in an impressive cathedral scene from ONE WITH THE FLAME.

ONE WITH THE FLAME

by

FRANCESCA K. DUNFEY

The fundamental, outer action of ONE WITH THE FLAME originates in an Ecclesiastical Court convened in a cathedral in Paris to re-examine the case of Joan of Arc who, twenty hours before, has been condemned and burned at the stake. A series of flashbacks, alternating with the inquiry proceeding within the Cathedral-Court, dramatize certain significant situations in Joan's turbulent life—thereby developing the inner action of the play and fusing it with the outer action as the story moves to its culmination.

Gregg Molda, James Smith, and John Detlaff examine the evidence which concerns the final verdict of burning Joan of Arc at the stake.

Carol Janick, Donna Gaden, and Marilyn Siuta listen intently as Isabella Mrozik reads passages from the script.

As Joan of Arc, Melita Doman begs her mother (Nancy Hunthausen) to pray for strength that she may carry on her mission.

Mary Janis, Christine Grueber, Karen Peleschak, Geraldine Borowczuk, Suzanne Nielsen, and Carol Jancik play country maidens in a scene from ONE WITH THE FLAME.

Nancy Hunthausen cries despairingly as she watches Melita Doman consumed by the flame in her role as Joan of Arc.

College and Career Day

Will it be Loyola, De Paul, Xavier, or Rosary College? Every year the seniors at Madonna High School are faced with the recurring problem of selecting a form of advanced education suitable to the individual. Since this is the final and most important step in education, it is imperative that the right choice is made.

Madonna offers its assistance to the upperclassmen by employing speakers from various colleges, universities, nursing, and secretarial schools. These representatives discuss with the girls all topics concerning their school, from the numerous courses which the school offers to the accepted casual attire on campus. Most students look forward to this day and benefit from the newly attained knowledge. Because of College and Career Day, many Madonnians have walked through university doors, confident that they have made the proper decision regarding their future.

A representative from Quincy College encourages Juniors, as well as Seniors, to further their education.

Interested upperclassmen, taking full advantage of College and Careers Day, listen intently to a speaker from Moser Secretarial School.

Various aspects of college life are interestingly presented the students by a director of the College of Saint Francis in Joliet.

Stephanie Bihun, Patricia Brennan, and Janice Wodnicki are absorbed in a speech by a representative from Mundelein College as he indicates the advantages of attending college there.

Wonder and delight are common reactions in any exhibitions of the cooking classes.

Parent Night

In order to insure a closer relationship between parents and the faculty, Madonna High School holds semi-annual Parent-Teacher Nights. On these occasions the students escort their parents on a tour of the building so familiar to them. Here they view the modern classrooms, offices, home economics and business laboratories, library, cafeteria, Little Theater, Social Room, and the Senior Lounge. The parents have an opportunity to discuss their daughter's scholastic ability, extra-curricular activities, and dedication to the school at these all-important conferences.

Miss Frances Mazurek informs Mrs. Sylvia Kostecki, an interested parent, of her daughter's progress in mathematics.

Mrs. Walter Bryk admires the achievements and progress made in the clothing class by her daughter Diane.

Carol Ann Schramm introduces her parents to Sister Mary Kingnetta, her teacher in Office Practice.

LEADERSHIP

The members of the National Honor Society must definitely possess the quality of LEADERSHIP. It is this attribute which makes them stand out from the other students in the school. The task of building a good reputation and a solid rating for their school is placed on their shoulders. It is up to these select few to assist their younger classmates in selecting the right road to adulthood.

The seniors of Madonna High School are also LEADERS. They lead the rest of the student body in age, maturity, knowledge, and experience. In their formative high school years they have decided which course of life they will eventually enter. After graduation they will put this plan into action. Whatever be their goal, it is stressingly important that they possess the quality of LEADERSHIP, so prevalent in the National Honor Society, in order to become better citizens for their country and more faithful followers of their Church.

Regina Gembara examines the pass given her by Madelaine Kowalewski, a member of the Student Council.

Why is our American system of government the best system? Because it is OF the people, BY the people, and FOR the people. It is undeniable that this particular form of government insures peace and efficiency and can be set as an exemplar for other organizations to follow.

The government at Madonna High School is voiced in the Student Council. It, too, is OF the students, BY the students, and FOR the students. The main purpose of the Student Council is to set the rules necessary for order and to see that they are enforced for the unification of the entire student body.

Only those students who show interest and demonstrate their spirit in the observance of school regulations are eligible for membership in the Student Council. Every member in the Council accepts the honor and, at the same time, accepts a grave responsibility. She must be ever mindful of the fact that she is a representative of the principles which she must uphold and observe in student government—a ruling power which insures orderliness, tranquility, peace, and unity.

Preparation for a weekly Student Council meeting is made by moderators and officers.

Senior Student Council member, Lois Kortyka, renders an invaluable service of instructing underclassmen.

Mary Kopczynski represents an efficient hallguard, who sees to it that the students move quickly to their next classes.

Seniors

The seniors represent the ultimate role of achievement, prestige, and distinction. But we have not received this dignity overnight. Four years ago we were just frightened freshmen, full of expectation. But as the years advanced, we gained more confidence, maturity, and refinement while growing intellectually and spiritually. Lasting friends have been made at Madonna, and our memories of each other will live on.

Now we will look ahead and plan for the future, using all we have learned. We will proceed into the world as the future business-women, professionals, and mothers of tomorrow. The only thing the seniors of 1964 will have left behind is a little of themselves.

Memories Are Made of This

These Are Our Seniors? Didn't the Years Go By Fast?

Ring Day

The Symbol of Intense Devotion to Goodness

The turning point in every Madonnian's life is Ring Day. It places a feeling of joy in a senior's heart. This is the first of many memorable events that lead to the end of one life and the beginning of another.

The ring is of significant value. Gazing upon it, a senior knows that the gold band symbolizes unity between her and the school. The blue stone reminds her of the Blessed Mother, the patroness and model. The golden rays are a symbol of God's graces showered upon her. The crossed arms signify the Franciscan emblem of the faculty members, who are her instructors, guides, and friends. The word MADONNA at the base of the ring needs no explanation; it has a special and a personalized meaning for each senior.

The gym was transformed into a Blue Hawaii for the Senior-Junior Ring Dance.

Mary Kopczynski, Christine Chowanski, and their escorts toss coins into the pool, hoping that their wishes come true.

The serene atmosphere seems to attract the attention of Arlois Vinson, Janet Wendel, and their escorts.

To add to the Hawaiian atmosphere of the Ring Dance, Elaine Merczak performs the ceremonial gesture of placing a lei on her escort. Shirley Skulimowski and her date look on approvingly.

Nancy Bus and her escort decide to pause for some real Hawaiian punch.

Mary Cordek and her escort are absorbed in admiring the festive and beautiful decorations at the Ring Dance.

The music of the ACCENTS added a Polynesian touch to the mystifying atmosphere of the "Blue Hawaii."

As the night lingered on, the aura of ecstasy filled the dancers with unforgettable memories.

From their vantage point of the balcony at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel, Carol Klodzinski, Maryanne Molda, Judith Yearsley, and Jean Pasowicz enjoy the aerial view of the panorama below.

Prom

Ascending the stairs to the East Room, Judith Kendzior and Christine Kidon pause with their dates, realizing how quickly time passes by on a memorable occasion.

Anticipation . . .

Enchantment . . .

Memories Galore

The senior year is the most memorable year of all. Toward its climax is that unforgettable reality of every girl's dream—her senior prom.

This enchanting evening begins at the school where the girls introduce their escorts to the faculty and then proceed to a magnificent ballroom. The soft dreamy music and romantic atmosphere of the Chicago Sheraton add to the evening's splendor. Even though the grand march marks the finale of a magical dream, one can truly say that it will linger in the hearts of every senior for many years to come.

This photo is visual proof that the chaperones are part of the fun and excitement of the annual prom.

Fond memories, the grand march, and the class song TONIGHT draw the seniors of 1963 together for what they probably realize will be one of the last happy moments as a group.

Pausing between dances and chatter are Joyce Pieszchala, Arlene Plocinski, and Janice Ziebka, seated; Joyce Lanzillo, Joanne Henson, Kay Phillips, and their escorts, standing.

An important and a privileged service is rendered by members of the Mothers' and Fathers' Clubs as they give their time to chaperone Madonna's prom.

Mary Ann Molda and Carol Klodzinski seem to feel that a beau on the night of the prom is a girl's best friend.

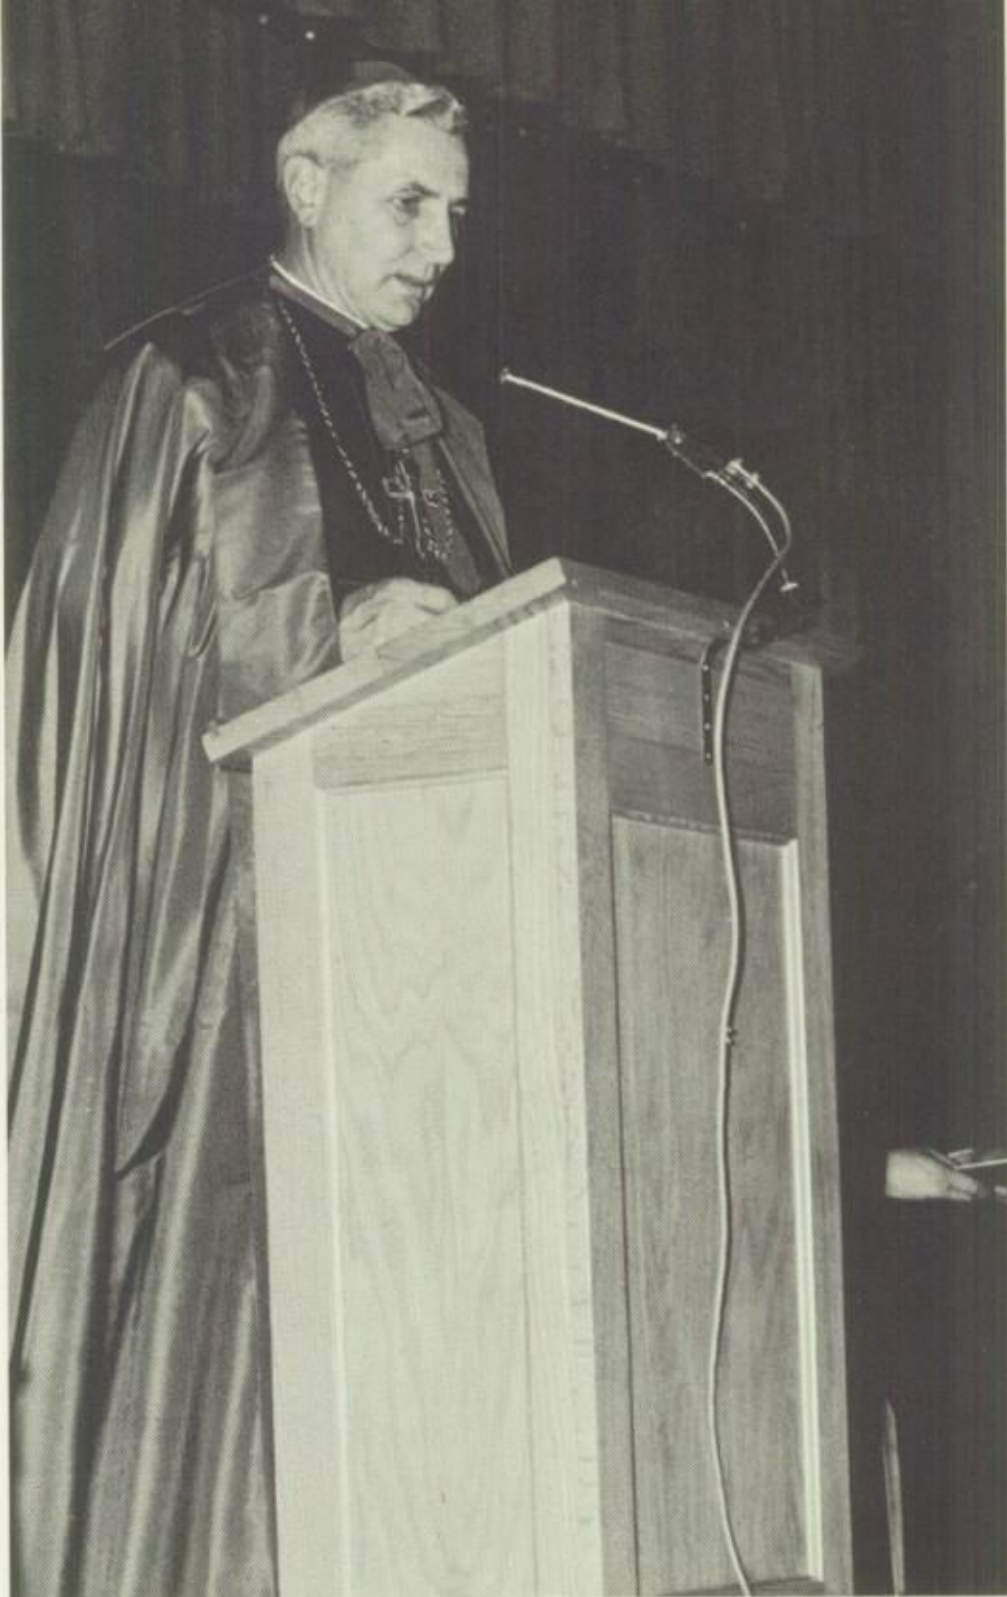

Graduation

Four of the most wonderful years of a girl's life have passed swiftly. The door of life and maturity is opened wide to the graduate. Her journey in search of the Truth, guided by the Holy Spirit and a Catholic education, is culminated.

New responsibilities confront her, with a realization that the path of adulthood will be even more rugged than that of adolescence. Knowing this, she is ready to walk through those open doors of Madonna High School with Mary as her model for life. She will enter into a new realm, prepared to accept any challenges the future holds for her.

Assisted by Mr. Raymond Leanhard, a member of the Fathers' Club, Linda Mattview descends the stairs with her diploma.

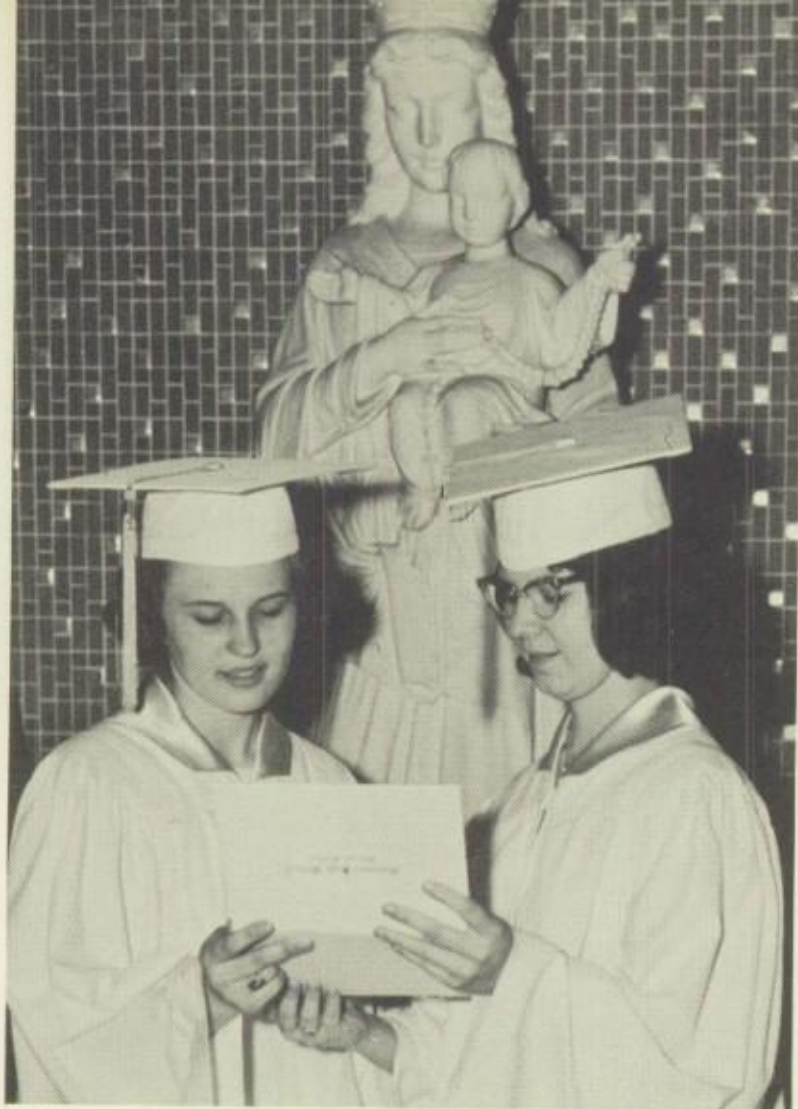

Preceding the commencement exercises, His Excellency Aloysius J. Wycislo, Auxiliary Bishop of Chicago, alerts the graduates to the solemnity of the occasion and the challenges to which it will open the door.

Anticipation and wonderment reign among the clergy, faculty members, and the graduates.

The Threshold of Maturity and Adulthood

What will follow this? Arlene Rosa and Fay Rogala ponder on their destiny.

As the time for graduation draws near, mixed emotions are evident on the faces of these Madonnians.

During the Commencement Exercises, the impressive renditions of the Glee Club hold the attention of the honored guests, the Reverend John Lane C.S.V., the Reverend Leonard Stachura C.S.V., His Excellency Aloysius J. Wy-cislo, and the Reverend Norbert Zawistanowicz.

CO-OPERATION

Although the leadership of the school is placed upon the seniors and, more particularly, upon the members of the National Honor Society, the task cannot be completed by them alone. They seek aid from the ranks of the underclassmen, who respond in the spirit of

CO-OPERATION.

As future prospective members for the National Honor Society, the girls are instilled in the freshman year with the ideal of unselfishness in their co-operation. They are encouraged to realize that the future of their school and, projecting a little further, the future of the world is reliant on their contributions. Imbued with this thought, they are encouraged to cultivate good character traits and virtues from the start. They are guided to imitate, and even to supercede, the present members of the National Honor Society in order to bring about peace and harmony within the school and in their daily lives.

his senior prom is a great success for both you and him. UNDERCLASSMEN wish you success in any career that you may choose. (teaching ???) So college so you don't end up a bum, working in a factory. In hoping our college days well spent together. (poor school!!) Good luck to a real sweet Madonnian. Your friend Always Jackie Morris

Class Officers

The Junior Division officers fulfill their authorized duties with perseverance and careful judgment. The tasks are undertaken by Mary Kopczynski, president; Christine Wessel, secretary; Patricia Erasmus, vice president; and Christine Dudek, treasurer.

Juniors . . .

So many events to look forward to this year

A junior at last!

The prestige of being an upperclassman has finally come.

But with this added importance is also the responsibility to give the best example possible.

In a very short time, today's junior will soon be an adult.

Already she has come to realize the true meaning of loyalty, courage, and friendship in her voluntary services to Madonna.

Class Officers

Preparations for a year of service and hopeful achievement is undertaken by the following Sophomore Division officers: Connie Danis, treasurer; Kathryn Kochs, secretary; Cecilia Bieszczat, president; and Beatrice Manfredini, vice president.

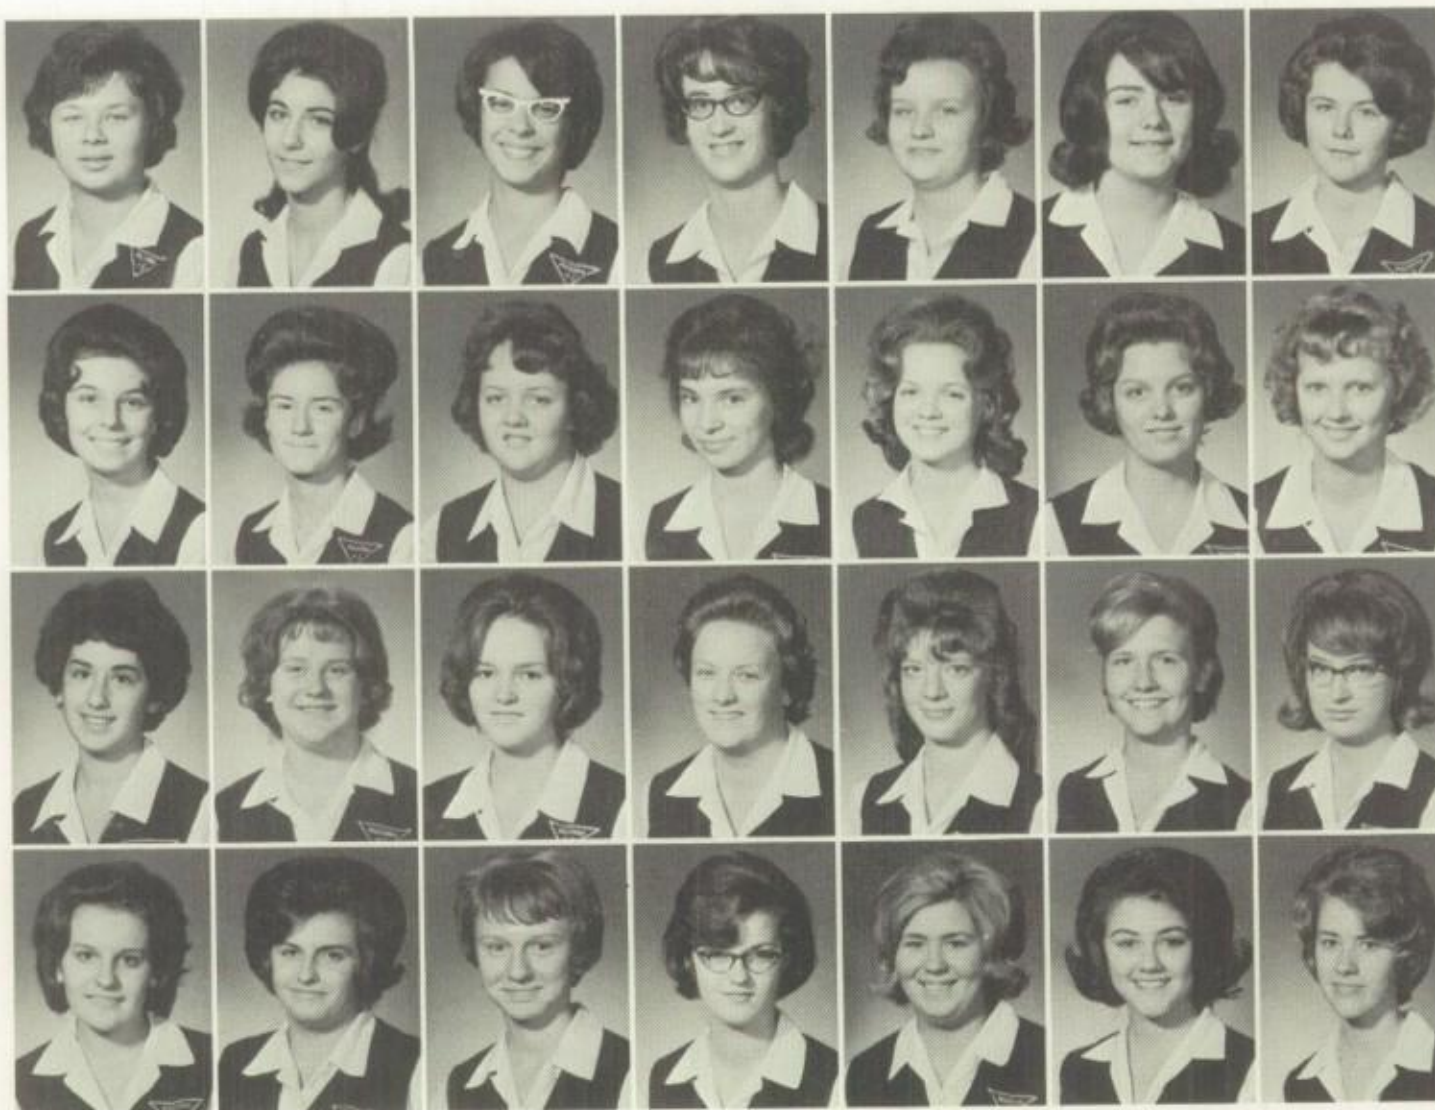

Sophomores . . .

No longer will we be named "freshies"

The title of sophomore is now conferred on the Class of 1966.

With only two years behind her, the sophomore has come to know the true meaning of being a Madonnian. She takes a sincere interest in school work and activities and strives to become more poised and proficient.

During this last year as an underclassman, she has dissected frogs and bisected angles; toiled through a Science Fair and participated in an installation program. This was her role — a preparation for that day, two years from now, when she will look back and see only memories.

Class Officers

The freshman homeroom presidents, Cynthia Schroeder, Marlene Romanchuck, Paulette Dziedzic, Jeanne Szewczyk, Regina Gembara, Mary Ellen Hobeck, and Carol Niziolek, reflect the true spirit of leadership and enthusiasm.

Freshmen . . . Eagerly yet timidly we climbed the stairs of Madonna High

The freshman is the most bewildered member of the student body.

She strives to get used to the five-minute class changes, the "mixed-up" schedule, and quarterly exams. But, in no time at all, she will gain confidence and assurance.

During the first year of high school the freshman will make new friends, which may endure as such throughout her four years at Madonna.

She will more easily organize her studies and still have time for clubs, socials, and activities. Soon all of these first memorable days will fade away, and a new path will be followed for the future.

Cafeteria and Maintenance

Besides caring for the scholastic pursuit of knowledge, the administrators must also maintain a crew of workers for the best performance and production in the physical angle of the educational institution. The observance of good order, beginning with the sweeping of the hallway down to the detailed instructions which must be followed in the boiler room, is an every-day episode on the school premises. This is ably fulfilled by the custodians and the matrons who have been chosen for their indispensable work in the maintenance and engineering crew.

For the satisfaction of the Madonnians' appetites, and also for the nourishment of the body so that it would continue to assist in the mental process of learning, a group of employees in the cafeteria perform their tasks well. They are guided in this commendable phase of work by Sister Mary Albertine, manager of the cafeteria, and Sister Mary Laetitia, her assistant.

Mrs. Stanley Gawel hands fresh sandwiches to Mrs. Harry Kaczynski for the lunch periods.

While Sister Mary Laetitia prepares hot chocolate, a cold-weather favorite, Mrs. Stanley Laske is ready to perform her work as cashier.

Taking note of all major and minor defects, Messrs. Harry Kaczynski and Walter Hoffman examine the school's heating system very carefully.

Sister Mary Albertine, Mrs. Frank Gorski, and Mrs. Henry Palewicz prepare to serve food to a hungry group of Madonnians.

SERVICE

Once a student has been chosen as a member of the National Honor Society, it is her duty to devote her time, efforts and enthusiasm to the organization. This service is peremptory if the work of the Society is to prosper. Just as service is necessary to the National Honor Society, so, too, it is imperative in the proper running of a school. The various clubs and activities at Madonna provide every girl with an ample opportunity to display her school spirit and ambition. When she has joined one of these worthwhile functions, it is her decision whether to actively participate in it and render her services, or to remain merely an inactive member. The choice is hers!

Sodality

With Mary as Their Model and Guide

"To Jesus through Mary" is the motto which Madonna's sodalists follow in their daily round of activities. As they become more Mary-like, they become more closely united to her Son.

In the sodalist is manifested the great and unique beauty of a holy woman. That is demonstrated by sodality-sponsored parties for the residents at St. Joseph Home for the Aged; annual clothing drives for the poor; and voluntary service in the cafeteria and office work in the Freshman Building. Spiritual exercises form a nucleus for the Sodality.

The love for Mary, however, is not confined to the four years at Madonna. It continues into the future as a sound basis for the principles which will motivate every word, deed, and action into a closer union with Jesus.

The Junior Sodality Council members work steadily during the year on the initiation of many projects.

Third Order

The Reverend Matthias Niedzwiecki, O.F.M., spiritual director of the Third Order, confers with Patricia Brennan, prefect; Judith Buscemi, vice prefect; Susan Humenik, treasurer; and Teresa Dzien, secretary.

In the Spirit of Saint Francis

The primary goal of a tertiary is her own sanctification, which is the perfection of her spiritual life. The cord and scapular which she wears is a constant external reminder of this inner dedication. Her second duty is to help her fellow man attain a higher level of perfection. This is accomplished by spreading the Franciscan spirit in a world where one's worth is too often judged on a material, rather than a spiritual basis. In conformity with this second aim, some of the projects sponsored by the Third Order include the Advent Wreath and Christ Child ceremonies; the Pilgrim Virgin processions in May and October; and the Halloween Party at St. Joseph Home for the Aged. Numerous works of charity during the weekends and the summer vacation supplement the daily activities.

The Third Order publication, The Tertiary Teen, though begun a year ago, has already won much favorable acclaim. Its purpose is to show the tertiaries how the principles of St. Francis can be applied to the life of a modern teenager.

The Reverend Joseph Sattler, Redemptorist retreat master, holds semi-private conferences with Patricia Zambito, Beverly Wood, Olga Rusnak, and Nancy Bus.

Adding to their spiritual growth, the seniors make the Way of the Cross during their retreat.

During the annual Junior-Senior Retreat, Halina Marlega, Irene Marczak, Daria Boryniuk, Kathleen Timmins, and Isabella Mrozik, seniors, are conditioning their minds spiritually with the aid of inspirational books.

Retreat

A Time of Reflection

After the hectic pace of mid-term examinations, the Madonnians are given an opportunity to pause and reflect on the status of their spiritual life. Realizing that God is their most important goal in life, they strive to "put their homes in order." The opportunities are opened to them by way of the annual retreat, for which one week is set aside each January. During this period of reflection, Madonnians hear Holy Mass daily, attend conferences, and are given sufficient time for independent meditation.

The reception of Holy Communion and a worthy preparation and thanksgiving crown the Madonnians' retreat most efficaciously.

May Crowning

Our Lady has a special place in the heart of every Madonnian. During the month of May she pays tribute to her as Our Queen. The Sodality members have Mary as their special guardian, and it is they who reserve the honor of being the chief participants in the May Crowning ceremonies.

The senior Sodality officers prepare for the annual May procession. Tentative plans are made by Darlene Dzieglewicz, treasurer; Letitia Koziol, vice prefect; Julianne Kloc, prefect; and Joan Cizewski, secretary.

Linda Fesus, Christine Wessel, Carol Groth, and Christine Jakus, Junior Sodality officers, present their offerings to the Blessed Mother on Madonna Day.

Julianne Kloc, senior Sodality prefect, places a crown of roses on the Madonna during the May crowning ceremony.

Madonna Day

Madonna Day is the annual Sodality-sponsored day of homage dedicated to Mary. At this special occasion a conference is delivered and a short religious program follows. Perhaps it is at this time that a girl begins to take pride in the fact that she is a member of a school which chooses Mary for its model and patroness.

Ceremonies

ADVENT WREATH AND CHRIST CHILD

During the season of Advent the Third Order sponsors a beautiful ceremony in anticipation of the coming of Christ. This is the Advent Wreath Ceremony; and it is intended as a reminder to all Madonnians that, just like the Jews prepared for Christ's coming to earth, they must also make ready for His coming into their hearts.

Every Monday, during the four weeks of Advent, a candle is lit on the wreath, the antiphons are read, and the hymn of O Come, O Come, Emmanuel is sung by the entire student body.

At the end of the four-week period of Advent, the Christ Child is presented to the Madonnians by the Third Order prefect. Symbolic gifts are offered to Him from each division. A sermon is delivered by a Franciscan Father, and the Glee Club completes the ceremony by rendering a few Christmas carols.

The Reverend Philip Marquard, O.F.M. blesses the wreath as Donna Golon aids Susan Humenik in lighting the candle for the first week in Advent.

The student body is addressed during the solemn Advent Wreath ceremony by the Reverend Philip Marquard, O.F.M., Executive Secretary of National Federation of Third Order of St. Francis.

To Prepare for His Coming

An aura of ecstasy fills the air as the Madonnians assemble for the presentation of the Christ Child by the members of the Third Order.

The Christ Child is brought into the auditorium and laid in the manger by participants of the Third Order.

Lenore Styburski, Lynn Janick, Mary Brickler, Nancy Zarembka, Francine Carolla, and Diane Sendor, second-year French students, admire a statuette depicting Our Lady's appearance to St. Bernadette at Lourdes in France.

The French Club officers, Donna Golon, president; Georgia Lejman, vice president; Alyce Robinson, secretary; and Bernadine Sliwa, treasurer, are making preparations before the meeting is called to order.

French Club

The Art of Culture Gained Through Interest and Learning

"O belle France! Mon amour!" This is one of the many expressions that can be uttered by a member of the French Club after having studied only a fragment of the culture of this romantic country.

Of course, the learning of the culture and customs of France is not the Club's only object of concentration. Members take extreme pleasure in trying to master the romantic language so that they may perfect their fluency of speaking.

Judith Mazur, Valerie Zmuda, Janice Wodnicki, and Mary Hager practice their French as they make use of "Francois" the continental word card game.

Future Nurses Club

Preparation Through Experience

The officers of the Future Nurses Club are justifiably honored to be members of a chartered Club. They are Marilyn Procenti, president; Beverly Wood, vice president; Barbara Gerhardt, secretary; and Patricia Bongiorno, treasurer.

A group of the members in the Future Nurses Club listen attentively to Marilyn Procenti, and Beverly Wood, as they propose aims of the Club.

The proper care of cuts and skin abrasions is shown by Kathryn May, Diane Drajka, and Nancy Hunthausen.

Nursing, one of the most rewarding professions that any person can select, is the basic consideration of the Future Nurses Club. Under the guidance of Mrs. Edward Klinger, R.N., the members get a vivid picture of what lies ahead on entering the nursing field. They find out that this particular work involves not only intensive study but also the tender-hearted sacrifice of their whole being.

Besides the serious activities of the Club, social hours form an integral part for character development for the future significant service to mankind.

Lucille Carollo, Christine Ziel, Marilyn Dalke, Judith Solan, Judith DeBarker, Carol Kasperek, Ellen Pouska, Mary O'Connor, Patricia Schwind, and Candida Nozicka work toward the completion of their Christmas tree projects for the Red Cross.

The Red Cross officers, Antoinette Parisi, treasurer; Candace Nozicka, secretary; Ellen Mosier, president; and Judith Mayer, vice president, prepare a busy agenda and make all necessary plans for the future projects.

Skillful Exhibit of Love

Have you had the personal satisfaction of motivating joy into the heart of an orphan or an aged individual? If you haven't, then you are missing the chance of attaining the sincere feeling of accomplishment.

By being a faithful participant in the Red Cross, the Madonnian is able to fulfill the precepts for performing corporal works of mercy to those who are less fortunate and abandoned. This is effectively performed under the leadership of Sister Mary Alacoque and the cooperative spirit of the members with artistic abilities and creative initiative for decorations, gifts, and toys.

The Red Cross proves to be the motivator of friendly relations. It is definitely a fact that the unwavering assistance of the Red Cross members has helped many lonely people get into the spirit of Christmas and other seasonal holidays. Orphaned children are awakened to the reality that life doesn't have to be all sorrow and unhappiness.

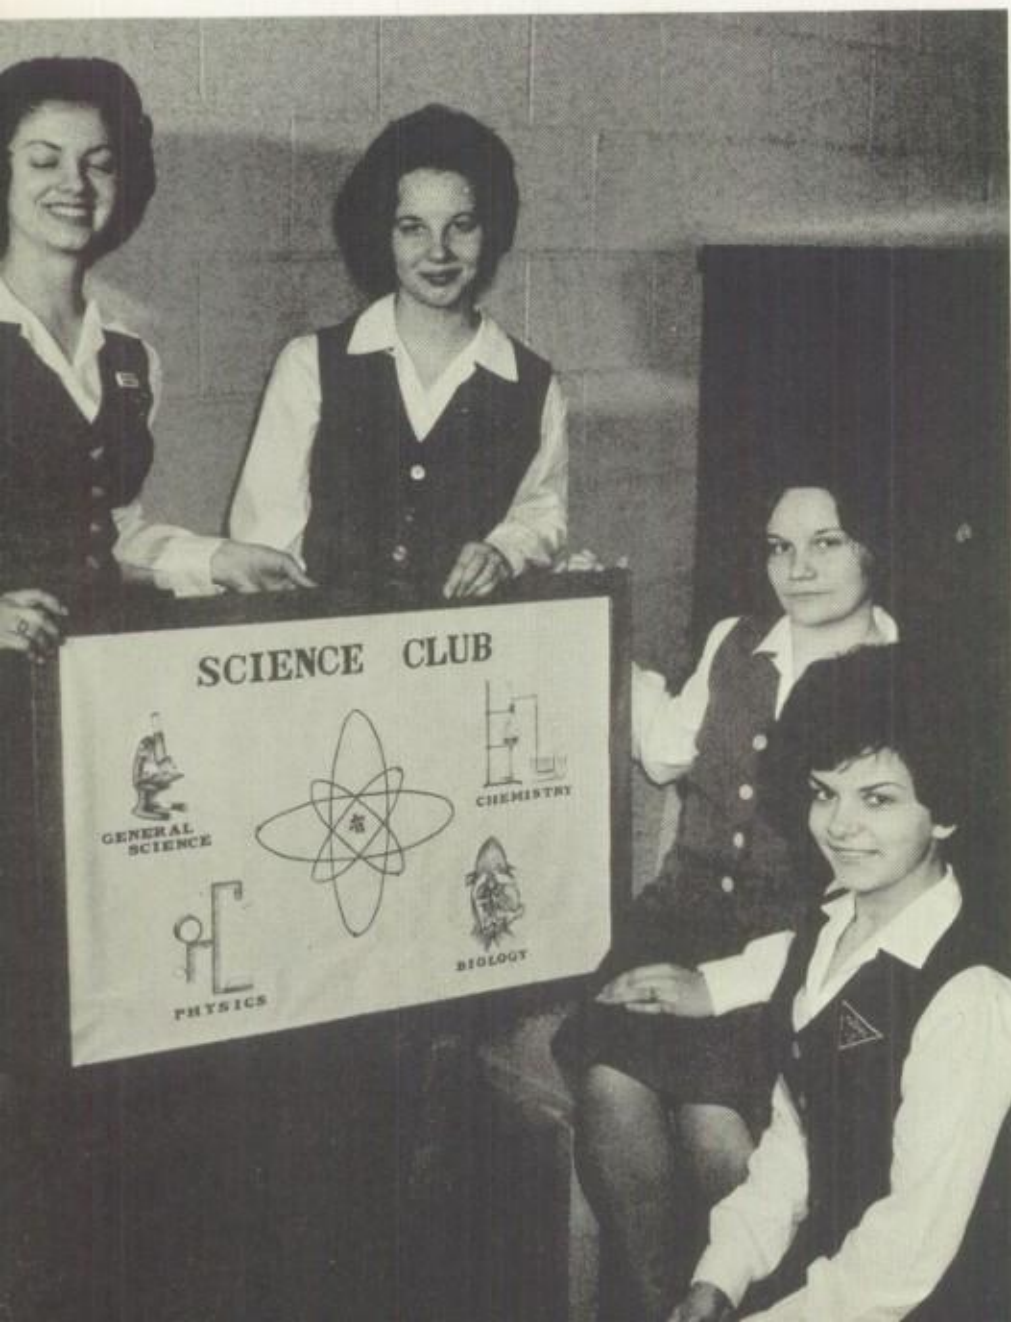

Dolores Cinquegrani and Geraldine Jacyna display their talent by producing centerpieces for the Club.

Add a little bit of challenge to lots of fun, and you have "Scientific Password," a frequent pastime of the Science Club.

The Science Club officers display a poster representing the various branches of science taught at Madonna. The administrators of the Club are Judith Mazur, president; Lynn Hytry, vice president; Mary Kopczynski, secretary; and Constance Danis, treasurer.

Science Club

Striving to Know the Unknown

Among the clubs at Madonna High School, the one which certainly must "keep on its toes" is the Science Club. It serves to provide the members with scientific knowledge which supplements classroom work. It is invaluable in enriching the scientific background of those members who are planning to pursue further into the mysteries of science, and it is also an enrichment program for those members who have a casual interest in the Club.

The Math Club officers set up a bulletin board to announce the mid-year point system deadline. They are Mary Cordek, president; Judith Buscemi, vice president; Cecile Dooley, secretary; and Alice Barski, treasurer.

Math Club

Development of Logical Minds

The junior and senior Madonnians have organized the Math Club in order to pursue their interest and further their knowledge in mathematics. The activity at meetings can range from quick math relay races to informative projects. Students keep abreast of new developments by submitting magazine articles on current topics relating to mathematics. The members are able to procure material for the oral projects from their own sources or from a number of books supplied by the moderator, Miss Frances Mazurek.

Membership in the Club is not restricted to students with high grades, but the members are taking or have taken advanced math courses. Qualified members can become enrolled in the Mu Alpha Theta Fraternity, a national honorary mathematics organization.

Members of the Math Club enjoy mathematical brain busters at their weekly meetings.

Smiles on the faces of these Mission Club members represent the joy which is derived from wrapping presents for the less fortunate.

Mission Club

Mercy Personified through Justice and Seasoned with Charity

"What you do for the least of My brethren, you do for me." Inspired by Our Lord's words, the members of the Mission Club strive to personify the works of mercy so desperately needed in the troubled world. From the material aspect, the members sponsor various fund-raising drives. Following the example of Saint Therese, the girls become modern missionaries by prayers and good works. This spirit is also fostered by discussions, movies, filmstrips, and reports from representatives in the mission field abroad.

The Mission Club is directly affiliated with the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, and is moderated by Sister Mary Tarcisia.

The Mission Club officers, Rita Galuszka, vice president; Lynn Hytry, secretary; Judith Buscemi, president; and Christine Dudek, treasurer, tabulate financial reports of the monthly income which is used for the support of the needy.

Diane Nawrot, Christine Keown, Linda Marksteiner, and Nancy Kosla examine a few articles contributed towards the Bishops' Relief Fund.

The members form the initial that represents the Catholic Interracial Club. C—Linda Bober, Nancy Burko, Linda Smizinski, Janice Migon, Edith Ozilins, Patricia Henson, Olga Dychie, Mary Ann Iantorno, Marilyn Ziarko, and Nancy Wenc. I—Janet Fascione, Marilyn Wala, Betty Danello, Nancy Kowalski, Diane Zych, Carolyn Syc, Lynette Zabinski, Fanny Montalvo, and Susanne Nielsen. C—Donna Klein, Maryann Lanz, Marcia Gillis, Mary McDonough, JoAnn Goclan, Irene Kwiecinski, Cynthia Mika, Dorothy Knuth, Mary Kopczynski, and Barbara Szostecki.

Miss Darlene O'Brochta, moderator of C.I.C., assists the officers in making plans for beneficial activities throughout the year. The agenda is prepared by Nance Kaweck, president; Christine Chowanski, vice president; Janet Czech, secretary; and Charlene Gol-lehon, treasurer.

C.I.C.

Tolerance through Patient Understanding

The seed of misunderstanding, basked in the light of ignorance and cultivated with acts of injustice, produces the strong and hardy bloom of prejudice. It seeks to destroy the roses of equality, reason, and right judgment as it flowers into bitter discrimination.

The task of the Catholic Interracial Club, then, is to cultivate understanding, knowledge, and charity. By fostering the idea of equal rights, prejudice will slowly wither away.

With spiritual aid from St. Martin de Porres, the Club's patron, and guidance from Miss Darlene O'Brochta, the moderator, the members of the C.I.C. have for their main endeavor to cultivate works of mercy in order to have others follow them in the recognition of all men as the children of God. Audio-visual media, lectures, literature, projects, and visits to various agencies assist in the total understanding of the needs of others.

Barbara Zyburt and Barbara Gerhardt, student librarians, are proud of their success on the layout of the information on the United Nations in the library's showcases.

The program for Faculty Tea is formulated by the student librarian officers: Jean Marie Kedzior, treasurer; Bernadine Jelen, secretary; Diane Kolimas, board member; Ruth Klepter, president; Mary Ann Sliwinski, board member; and Linda Fesus, vice president.

Library Club

An Indispensable Student Service

The atmosphere in the school library, prevailing with a sense of genuine seriousness and studiousness, is often interspersed with the presence of student librarians at work. Their external decorum portrays responsibility, orderliness, and service. They may be found in the workroom among back issues of periodicals; at the charging desk with an ever-ready disposition to be of service; amidst filmstrips and tapes in the audio-visual center; at the library showcases arranging a new feature for the National Catholic Book; and at the card catalog assisting an upperclassman to find her research material.

Junior student librarians, Barbara Gerhardt, Sandy Winter, Diane Dus, Louise Phillip, Karen Sims, and Julie Storc, pave the path to "Biography Boulevard" for the faculty and student body during Book Week.

Camera Club

A Photographer's World of Delight

One of the most satisfying experiences can be gained through the membership in the Camera Club. After-school hours, free days, and holidays offer manifold surprises in the Dark Room of the chemistry laboratory.

Before one can procure official entrance into the intriguing atmosphere of the Dark Room, detailed theoretical information must be mastered. It consists of the construction and operation of various cameras, films, and the step-wise processes of developing and printing black and white pictures.

Under the competent guidance of Mr. Marian Schommer, and with assistance from Sister Mary Alvernia and Sister Mary Tarcisia, Camera Club members are also introduced to the functions of the delicate lenses, solutions for developing pictures, and the intricate operation of the enlarger and press camera.

Madeline Schultz, Barbara Gaborek, and Gwen Pasciak insert film into their cameras as they prepare to snap a picture.

Barbara Gaborek is well acquainted with the precision and accuracy of the "camera eye." Madeline Schultz and Gwen Pasciak are ready to give assistance in case she runs into trouble.

MAdonnaRY

Pictorial Memories of Days Gone By

Blend one capable editor, two industrious co-editors, an efficient business group, and hard-working members of the yearbook staff. Combine with great encouragement from patient Sister Mary Sponsa, the moderator. Season with immeasurable enthusiasm, inexhaustible imaginations, and hours of tedious and useful service. Gradually sift countless captions, photos, and art pieces. Add a dash of debate, a spoonful of choices, and a cup of decisions. Stir vigorously in a flurry of activity for the deadline on March 1. Place in a state of frenzied anticipation until May. Then, voila! Feast on the offspring of work, wishes, and whims of the staff—the MAdonnaRY of 1964.

The intense search for the best pictures to brighten the pages of the yearbook is undertaken by Elaine Merczak, editor; Saveria Lombardi, co-editor; Sister Mary Sponsa, moderator; and Janice Wodnicki, co-editor.

The members of the MAdonnaRY art staff reproduce their sketches in ink for the 1964 yearbook. The detailed work is done by Teri Dzien, Olga Rusniak, Julianne Kloc, Daria Boryniuk, Nancy Anselmo, Sabina Mielicki, and Barbara Czajkowski.

Arlois Vinson, Susan Alchenberger, Patricia Kutza, Barbara Rezutko, Irene Mordarski, Mariann Sliwinski, Bernadine Maczka, and Cynthia Kolassa search for appropriate words to correspond to eye-catching captions.

The tedious work of composing and typing captions for the yearbook is competently undertaken by Alice Barski and Mary Cordek.

The enthusiastic business staff of the MAdonnaRY is comprised of Donna Golon, Nance Kaweck, court jester, and Marilyn Grodecki, who proudly display their poster for the patron drive.

Madonna Clarion

Madonna's Monthly Diary

High on the list of Madonna's prominent literary achievements is the Clarion, the school newspaper. It is an integral tool in uniting the student body with the presentation of articles, school news, senior personalities, and editorials. Two interesting columns, Madonna Murmurs and the Inquiring Reporter, captivate the readers' attention in every publication.

Under the guidance of Sister Mary Kingnetta and Sister Mary Seraphinia, the Madonna Clarion has been awarded an ALL CATHOLIC recognition for the fifth consecutive year by the Catholic Press Association. It has been distinguished as one of the best high school newspapers in the nation for its literary work and scholarly performance.

Irene Mordarski, typist for the school newspaper, prepares a copy for proofreading; while Elizabeth Williams, editor, dictates an article to Mari-Ann Scaramuzzi.

G. A. A.

G.A.A. officers relax during a break in their meeting. They are Lynette, treasurer; Marge O'Rourke, vice president; Marilyn Grodecki, president; Janis Kummer, secretary; and Linda Glogowski, social chairman.

The members of the Girls' Athletic Association are proud to appear as a group.

Row 1: Janis Kummer, Cecil Dooley, Sabina Mielicki, Halina Marlega, Nancy Bus, Irene Klysz, Cynthia Azzarello, Pamela Porada, Christine Zachacki, and Lynnette Zabinski.

Row 2: Carol Schramm, Judith Zelasko, Marion Nowak, Harriet Minota, Linda Glogowski, Patricia Bongiorno, Marilyn Ratkowski, and Margaret O'Rourke.

Row 3: Marlene Mulzof, Diane Schmitt, Candida Nozicka, Darlene Leonard, and Marilyn Grodecki.

Sportsmanship through Co-operation

The Girls' Athletic Association, now three years young, aims to promote sportsmanship among the Madonnians who are interested in athletics. The girls work on a competitive basis with other high schools and participate in various activities in order to attain their trophies—the coveted awards in the senior year.

The recently formed Pep Club contributes its action during times of success or defeat in the competitive events. These members take pride in displaying their true school spirit through their cheers and applause. Under the supervision of Miss Judith Langston, the girls learn the true qualities of an athlete and endeavor to qualify in the art of good sportsmanship, skill, cooperation, and fair play.

Janis Kummer and Sabina Mielicki, secretaries of Madonna's Bowling League, have no difficulty in computing bowling averages for the girls on their team.

Bowling League

The senior members of the Bowling League take pride in their weekly victories.

Row 1: Jeri Myers, Janis Wesley, Marilyn Dalke, Gwendolyn Pasciak, Madelaine Kowalewski, Roberta Schroeder, and Rose Cholke.

Row 2: Lynnette Zabinski, Patricia Zuchel, Irene Klysz, Patricia Kendzior, Mary Ellen Berek, and Barbara Spracklen.

A League of Competition Against Strikes and Spares

A spare, a strike, and the average is 146. This is what the Madonnians of the Bowling League, under the supervision of Miss Judith Langston, hope to attain.

The upperclassmen in the League have to work hard to obtain the honor of being awarded a trophy for the highest average, game, or series, and for the second and third-place teams. The divided League meets on Monday and Wednesday of each week and gives the girls the opportunity to learn true and loyal sportsmanship for team work, instead of individual recognition. The qualities attained through the bowling season are evident in the girls' characters. It has been proven that the Bowling League is an excellent extra-curricular activity in the physical education department.

Realizing that the choice of a good bowling ball is an important and an almost indispensable feature in attaining a high score, Jeri Myers and Pamela Porada test it for perfect fit.

The Cisca banner, won for having an excellent attendance for the Holy Hour at Notre Dame Church, is proudly shown by Janice Zelasko to Judith Solan, Kathleen Kilian, and Christine Chowanski.

Emily Kukula, Jolanta Skory, and Barbara Duggan check the Cisca Holy Hour attendance from each homeroom.

The officers of Cisca are confident that their efforts at the annual dance, "Winterland by Night," were rewarding. They are Janice Zelasko, president; Judith Solan, vice president; Janet Czech, secretary; Kathleen Kilian and Shirley Jezierny, point chairmen.

Cisca

Lay Apostolate in Action

To meet the demands for more active participation in Catholic action, interested Madonnians join the Chicago Inter-Student Catholic Action group, generally known as Cisca. It has as its primary goal the restoration of true Christian ideals in the complex, materialistic society of today. The Ciscans are dedicated to the work of establishing these ideals throughout the world and among their immediate associates. Under the expert guidance from Sister Mary Alvernia, these girls devote many hours in their fight against indecent movie productions, pornographic publications, and Communism. The special activities include Holy Hour on Sunday afternoon each month, Saturday forums, and the annual talent program — CISCARAMA.

Cisca organization is truly "an army of youth, flying the standard of truth . . . For our flag, for our faith, for Christ the King."

Barbara Rylko, S.D.S. business manager, and Mary Hager, Chicago chairman, display their satisfaction on the excellent results of the Annual S.D.S. Fashion Show which they arranged.

Christine Jakus, Madelaine Kowalewski, Cheryl Pietrzak, Melita Doman, and Joyce Leppak pose in the attire in which they modeled at the S.D.S. Fashion Show.

S. D. S.

Modesty Within the Means of Fashion

Founded on the ideal virtue of modesty, the S.D.S. members attempt to demonstrate the conviction that a Catholic-minded girl can be fashionable and, at the same time, modest.

S.D.S. acquaints the members not only with means of fulfilling its goal, but also passes on this information to those who are not directly affiliated with the group. Under the guidance of Sister Mary Alvernia, the members endeavor to eliminate the present trend toward indecent wear by providing appealing clothing and constantly upholding the ideals of its organization.

Proud to represent Madonna High School at the S.D.S. Fashion Show are the queen, Janis Kummer, and two members of her court, Donna Gaden and Melody Henner.

Officers of the Alumnae Association pose before an authentic Hawaiian hut at their annual dance. They are Miss Judith Mazanet, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas Skaja, president; Miss Marilyn Moskal, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lee McCurley, secretary; and Miss Patricia Papak, vice president.

Alumnae of Madonna tantalize their tastebuds at the Anniversary Tea in the Sheraton Hotel.

Complete enjoyment is the prevailing mood at ALMOST PARADISE held at Turner Hall.

Alumnae Association

Our Kinship with Madonna's Future

Graduation day does not necessarily terminate the bond with the educational center of the adolescent years. Through the Alumnae Association the graduate re-kindles old friendships, gives birth to new ones, and keeps up with the innumerable activities of the Alma Mater.

The interest in the school is heightened by the various functions of the Association, which are under the auspices of Sister Mary Sponsa. These activities tend to increase the love and respect that one has for Madonna High School.

The diploma is not an instrument that severs all ties with friends, teachers, and memories. Those unforgettable souvenirs of our memory can be retained in the Association through many richly rewarding experiences.

The children of former Madonnians seem to be enjoying the presence of Santa Claus. (Mr. Stanley Laske)

Sock hops are always fun and this one is no exception as can be vouched for by this group of enthusiastic teen-agers.

Teri Dzien, Janet Czech, and their escorts receive bids from Mrs. Walter Solan as a preliminary memento at the Cisca dance.

This year's annual yuletide dance, "Winterland by Night," drew a crowd of unsurpassed participants.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The 1964 MADONNARY staff members sincerely thank all those who contributed to the compilation of the yearbook. Heartfelt thanks are especially extended to Sister Mary Hugoline, our principal; Sister Mary Sponsa, our moderator; the entire faculty, and the student body.

Deep appreciation is also given to our engraver, Mr. R. A. Mitchell of Graphic Photo Engravers Company, and to the personnel at Stewart and Fryer, Incorporated, Printers and Lithographers. We fully recognize with pride the professional work of Walinger Studios, under Mr. Robert Hanson, and the services of The New World staff.

And, finally, a special acknowledgement must be rendered to the patrons, without whose financial support the yearbook would be an impossibility. May God bless our benevolent benefactors!

Dear Sharon,
I hope you enjoy the summer more than you did cutting up worms!
It's been fun having classes with you. Always stay as nice as you are.
Love
Pat 2288

Dear Sharon:
Good luck
next year.
Barbara Maliszewski

Dear Sharon,
It's been great
knowing you as an underclassman. I hope
we'll have as much fun
next year.

Love 'n' Luck
Judi Moczulski
P.S. Have a sharp summer.

Dear Sharon,
Thank you for being
such a wonderful friend.
I enjoyed all the wonderful talks you gave about your love life.
Your funny antics at the lunch table brought many laughs. I hope we can sit together next year so you can tell me the rest of your exciting life.
Be good + Good Luck to a real neat & sweet kid.
Love Always,
Sylvia THE GREAT?

Dear Sharon,
Good luck in your future years, and remember the fun we had in English class.
Love,
Sylvia Chanski

Dear Sharon,
It's been great
fun in Religion together.
Lots of luck in the yrs to come. Hope to have you in some classes
next year.

Dear Sharon,
Lots of Luck in future years. And always keep that happy smile. And remember the did who kept hitting you in Polish.
Love Always,
Diane Bryk

Dear Sharon,
It was nice having
Religion with you and good luck in the future. As sweet as you are.
Amanda

Love you,
Rose Chorney
Dear Sharon,
Enjoyed having you for 210. Best of luck in your future year.

Dear Sharon (Swiena)
I'll never forget the time we had together. We were really nutty. I never had such a blast
at the lunch table
as I did this year.
You are a real nut,
I mean a real nut.
You and I really
became good friends
I'm glad.

Dear Sharon,
What would I have ever done if you hadn't sat next to me in study. Your perseverance in study and your willingness to learn will insure your success.

Love
Melody
